Argentina sinks British destroyer

By United Press International

Argentina sank its first British ship Tuesday, the destroyer Sheffield, and shot down a British jet in a sea battle inside the 200-mile blockade zone around the Falkland Islands. Britain said 30 sailors were feared dead.

British officials said the $40 million Sheffield, one of Britain's most modern warships, sank between the islands and the Argentine coast.

It was hit by a French-made Exocet missile fired from a plane launched from Argentina's only aircraft carrier, the British-built 25th of May.

The missile hit amidships, plowing into the operations room and touching off a fire that engulfed the 3,500-ton ship. Defense Secretary John Nott told Parliament "the number of deaths may be as high as 30." The rest of the 270-man crew was rescued by other British ships, Britain said.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was said by her aides to be "devastated" by the news and summoned her war cabinet.

Only hours earlier she told Parliament: "The worry I live with hourly is that Argentine forces, in attacks both naval and air, will get through to our forces."

ABC News quoted U.S. intelligence sources that a major naval war was imminent. Speculation persisted that a British landing on the Falklands also was close at hand as fierce storms that herald the onslaught of winter in the South Atlantic eased. The break in heavy cloud cover and diminished winds would facilitate an invasion.

The Sheffield was one of five destroyers in the British war fleet and the first British ship to be lost in the undeclared war touched off by Argentina's invasion of the Falkland Islands April 2.

A grim-faced British Defense Ministry spokesman announced the loss over nationwide television to a shocked nation. He said a British Sea Harrier jetfighter also was shot down over the South Atlantic and its pilot killed.

"The ship caught fire, which spread out of control," the spokesman said. "When there was no longer any hope of saving the ship, the ship's company abandoned her.

"All those who abandoned ship were picked up by another British vessel. It is feared there are a number of casualties . . . Next of kin will be notified as soon as details are received," the spokesman said.

In Buenos Aires, the Argentine military command said anti-aircraft batteries on the Falklands also downed three Sea Harriers attacking Port Darwin. It claimed "there were no victims or damages on our side."

The sinking of the Sheffield came on one of the deadliest days in the war for the rugged, windswept Falkland Islands 450 miles off the Argentine coast.

Lost load

Driver Mark Francis of Wendell lost his load of irrigation pipe Tuesday afternoon while turning onto Caswell Avenue from Washington Street North in Twin Falls. He was on his way to Wendell when loose ropes and high winds slowed him down.

Haig meets British official about attack

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig canceled his appearance at a dinner in New York Tuesday night for an urgent meeting with Britain's ambassador to the U.S. to discuss the costly sinking of an English destroyer by an Argentine warplane.

Haig arrived at Andrews Air Force Base in suburban Maryland in the late afternoon en route to New York when he got word that Sir Nicholas Henderson wanted a conference.

Haig's gear was removed from the government jet and he rushed back to the State Department. There he and the grim-faced Henderson apparently discussed the loss of the destroyer Sheffield and a possible death toll of 30 British sailors.

Henderson said he was "sorry," but declined to discuss the conversation with Haig and the State Department released no details on the 2 ½ hour session.

Haig was to have attended an awards dinner of the Ireland Fund at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York.

The State Department, apparently concerned that rising emotions in Argentina could erupt into anti-American demonstrations, earlier advised non-essential personnel of the U.S. Embassy in Buenos Aires and their dependents to leave the country.

Haig was pessimistic earlier in saying the sinking of Argentina's main cruiser by a British submarine would likely harden the negotiating position in Buenos Aires.

Haig told a Senate Appropriations subcommittee the sinking of the General Belgrano, the second largest ship in the Argentine navy, and the feared heavy loss of lives further dim hopes for a negotiated settlement of the dispute over the sparsely-populated South Atlantic archipelago.

"One ready conclusion is that the recent tragic loss associated with the loss of the cruiser will contribute to the continuing (Argentine) intransigence," he said.

At the White House, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said the sinking "demonstrates the gravity and danger" of the conflict.

Speakes rejected Argentina's charge that U.S. intelligence aided the British submarine in sinking the cruiser Sunday.

Haig, who twice visited Buenos Aires in his monthlong attempt to negotiate a settlement and avert hostilities, said the Argentine junta headed by Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri was inflexible throughout.

Reagan ended Washington's neutrality Friday by imposing military and economic sanctions against Argentina and offering Britain "logistical" support such as fuel for its fleet. Haig said this type of aid "has not been expanded during the period of this crisis and we have been very careful to avoid this."

He said aid "will be decided on a case-by-case basis and it will be the consequences of specific requests, which we have not received."

"We do not — even under the provisions of Friday's announced decision — anticipate expanding our role in any way that would bring us to the touchy area of military involvement," he said. "We don't anticipate that at all."

Haig said the Soviet Union and Cuba has offered Argentina "blandishments" but it appears Buenos Aires has not accepted them.

"We have no hard evidence other than evidence of blandishments," he said.

"The Argentine government has vociferously denied that it has accepted these blandishments — whether they involve the provision of intelligence or more material assistance," he said.

Domenici proposes non-defense budget freeze, more taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., offered a plan Tuesday to raise taxes and freeze most non-defense spending, including Social Security.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the president objects to the tax and Social Security aspects of the plan, and Domenici acknowledged that "the president's not for it." But he vowed to push forward with it anyway.

The president's $787 billion budget would produce a deficit next year of $101.9 billion by his own estimates and $132 billion, according to the Congressional Budget Office.

Budget experts contend the 1983 deficit, projected to hit $182 billion if no action is taken, must be kept under $100 billion to allay financial market fears and help lower interest rates.

Domenici, claiming sole authorship of his surprise proposal, said his "bold, politically risky" plan would produce a deficit of $89 billion in 1983, $59 billion in 1984 and $19 billion in 1985.

House Republican leader Bob Michel of Illinois, who met later at the White House with Reagan and GOP members of the House Budget Committee, reported many of his party brethren are more conservative on the budget fight than the president.

Michel said his colleagues are less inclined to agree with a tax increase to cut the deficit than they are to a cut or outright freeze in entitlement program benefits. But he said he is confident the Republicans can reach a consensus.

He criticized House Democrats for not proposing their own alternative, and said, "They just can't lag back forever." Michel said Reagan's roundly criticized February budget proposal for 1983 "is looking better and better all the time (compared to) options that won't sell."

The full Senate met in an unusual closed session amid unprecedented security Tuesday for an intelligence briefing intended to show the Soviet military threat justifies President Reagan's record $180 billion weapons request for next year.

In announcing the first closed meeting of the full Senate since 1980, Senate Republican leader Howard Baker of Tennessee said it was "only for senators and very limited staff cleared for code work."

The Senate sergeant-at-arms, Defense Intelligence Agency and Capitol Police intelligence unit took extraordinary steps to secure the Senate chamber.

The session lasted about 2 ½ hours. Then the Senate doors were reopened and public debate on the bill resumed.

House Budget Committee Democrats, meanwhile, met privately to develop their own budget strategy before attempting to draft a budget document later this week.

In a separate meeting, Rep. Charles Stenholm, a leader of the Conservative Democratic Forum, said the group "unanimously agreed to work with (Budget Committee chairman) Jim Jones to formulate a bipartisan budget."

Panel sends Voting Act to Senate after compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday approved a compromise Voting Rights Act extension bill that has been endorsed by the president.

The bill includes assurances it won't lead to racial quotas for elections.

The panel first voted 14-4 to accept a compromise amendment that Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., hammered out during the past weekend with committee liberals. It contains an assurance that a so-called "results test" for voter discrimination would not lead to "proportional representation."

Then the committee voted 17-1 to send the overall bill to the Senate floor.

Holdout conservatives warned the so-called "results test" for discrimination could cause federal courts to dismantle an estimated 12,000 municipal governments that use at-large elections if minority candidates do not win office in proportion to their population ratios.

But Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., the committee chairman, and Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a leading critic of the compromise, voted for the bill despite their misgivings. President Reagan had endorsed this portion of the compromise late Monday.

The lone dissenting vote was cast by Sen. John East, R-N.C., who was defeated in efforts to inject an array of amendments he said were needed to make the voting rights law less burdensome and less stigmatizing on the South.

"I fear the language is going to do to voting what busing has done for education," East said.

The lopsided committee vote, plus expected overwhelming Senate support, virtually assured quick Senate approval needed to prevent a key portion of the 1965 Voting Rights Act from expiring Aug. 6.

This portion requires jurisdictions that used discriminatory voter tests before 1965 to get federal approval of any voting changes.

Partisan attack

Reagan lashes out at budget foes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan Tuesday night assailed his budget foes for producing an "economic catastrophe" and holding "a fire sale on national security."

In a fiery, partisan attack, the president told a $1,000-a-plate fundraiser for GOP Senate and House candidates that now is the time to tell the public about the enormity of the problems his administration faced when it took office.

"Remember," said Reagan, "after the national political debate gets under way, it's the other party that will have to make some stark admissions to the American people.

"It's the liberal leadership of the other party that's going to have to say, 'We're the ones who refused to cut spending. We're the ones who tried to take away your tax cut.

"We're the ones who tried to protect every lord and fiefdom in the federal bureaucracy. We're the one's who wanted a bargain basement military and held a fire sale on national security."

The president's remarks were a further indication that he has given up on trying to strike a budget bargain with House Speaker Thomas O'Neill and will concentrate instead on wooing so-called "responsible Democrats" to his cause.

"The American people know the kind of economic catastrophe that this administration and this majority in the Senate inherited" in January 1981, Reagan said.

Earlier in the day, an bourlong conference with Republican leader Bob Michel of Illinois and GOP members of the House Budget Committee showed Democrats are not the only ones taking exception to the Reagan budget.

The meeting left Reagan and his lieutenants facing formidable odds in the effort to strike a budget deal that can pass Congress.

Michel said after Tuesday's meeting there is still a great deal of disagreement among the Republicans on how to proceed.

The White House dismissed suggestions there might be a resumption of budget bargaining with House Democratic leaders.

"We have no hint that the House Democratic leadership is interested in coming forward to meet us halfway," said White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes.

Speakes' comments on the budget battle came just a day after Senate Republican leader Howard Baker told reporters he wants to try again to work with Democratic House Speaker Thomas O'Neill to fashion a bipartisan compromise. Baker spoke to reporters after seeing Reagan at the White House Monday.

Comments by administration officials appeared to indicate that congressional Republicans are pursuing a more conciliatory path toward the Democrats than is Reagan, who failed in a bid for a compromise last week during a face-to-face meeting with O'Neill.

Today's briefing

Drowning victim recovered

SHOSHONE — Search and rescue unit members from Lincoln County reported an apparent drowning Tuesday night.

Volunteers aiding in the search said the body of a man had been recovered, apparently from the Big Wood River near Magic Reservoir. The identity of the victim or other details were not known late Tuesday evening.

Lincoln County sheriff's deputies declined to confirm the drowning or release any information about the search.

Blind man paroled for deaths

LAWTEY, Fla. (UPI) — Still unconvinced of his guilt, an 80-year-old, legally blind man emerged on the arm of his daughter Tuesday from a minimum-security prison where he spent the past year for running down and killing three girls on a Naples street.

Rolnald "Doc" Slatzer, who has said all along that his Lincoln Continental struck some garbage cans, not girls, was packed into the back seat of a four-door sedan driven by his son-in-law and whisked away.

Sentenced to an indeterminate term of six months to five years in prison, Slatzer's parole was conditioned on his agreeing to leave the state during the four years of his probation and never to drive again.

Kirkpatrick: U.N. no bargain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick said Tuesday Americans, who contribute at least $1 billion to the United Nations each year, are not getting their money's worth but should not abandon the world body.

The United States, she said, must "continue to play a full part in the organization . . . and try to make that participation more effective."

Anderson rents home to self

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Anderson, who lost an independent bid for the presidency in 1980, is using leftover campaign funds to rent political office space in his home and to pay utility bills, Scripps-Howard News Service said Tuesday.

A report filed with the Federal Election Commission by the National Unity Campaign for John Anderson shows that since December, Anderson has paid himself $800 in rent and $2,057.94 in electric and gas bills for using three rooms on the second floor of his three-story brick home.

Anderson, his wife, Keke, and two of their five children live in the home.

Interviewed by Scripps-Howard reporter James Herzog in the paneled study of the home, Anderson made no apologies for his office arrangements. He said it is "lots easier to get to work," although he spends much of his time making speeches.

Reagan's TV horse killed

KANAB, Utah (UPI) — A bolt of lightning struck and killed Sinbad the Sailor — a horse used by President Ronald Reagan when he was hosting the western television series "Death Valley Days."

Sinbad's owner, Calvin Johnson, said Tuesday the 20-year-old horse died instantly Monday afternoon when he was hit in the ear by a lightning bolt. The horse was grazing in a pasture directly underneath a powerline.

Johnson said the horse retired from show business several years ago and was spending his time munching alfalfa and entertaining the Johnson grandchildren.

"He was a nice, big, gentle old horse," said Johnson, "just right for the grandkids to ride."

Reagan often rode or posed with the horse when he introduced the Death Valley Day's programs, Johnson said.

600 people mark Kent State

KENT, Ohio (UPI) — About 600 people gathered Tuesday on the 12th anniversary of the National Guard killings of Kent State University students and heard speakers call for construction of a monument to honor four slain students.

The state legislature plans a memorial to the governor who ordered the guardsmen to the campus.

During a demonstration near the site of the May 4, 1970, shootings of anti-war protesters, speakers recalled the tragedy of the deaths. It was one of the smallest crowds to show up for an anniversary observance.

Other students nearby staged a water balloon fight, played with Frisbees and sprawled on beach blankets in sunny, warm weather.

The state legislature in Columbus passed a bill Tuesday to build a memorial to Gov. James A. Rhodes, responsible for ordering the National Guard sent to the campus.

IRA gunmen kill policewoman

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Two IRA gunmen ambushed a police patrol Tuesday, killing one officer and seriously injuring an unarmed, 19-year-old policewoman.

It was the fifth death in Londonderry in five weeks and came one day before the anniversary of hunger striker Bobby Sands' death in the Maze Prison.

Police said a third member of the patrol, which was operating in Londonderry's Diamond area near the city center, was uninjured in the attack for which the Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility in telephone messages to local newspapers.

A police spokesman said the two IRA gunmen sprang from a van believed to have been hijacked.

Today's weather

Fair and warmer; morning frost

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas:
Fair and warmer today and Thursday after areas of frost this morning. Winds near 15 mph this afternoon. Highs 60 to 65 both days. Lows near 30.

Camas Prairie, Hailey, Wood River valley:
Fair and warmer through Thursday. Highs in the upper 50s today and 60 to 65 on Thursday. Lows 16 to 25.

Northern Nevada and Utah:
Fair through Thursday in both states. Cold nights and warmer days. Highs in the 60s. Lows 25 to 35 with frost possible.

Synopsis:
Generally dry and fair.

That's the outlook for the Magic Valley and much of Idaho for the rest of this week as a strong high pressure system appears emplaced over the Pacific Northwest.

Conditions for field preparation, planting and fertilizing in the Magic Valley will be generally good through Sunday. Plant emergence and growth will be slowed today by chilly temperatures but will improve with warmer late week readings. Spraying conditions will be fair to good this afternoon as wind velocities reach 10 to 20 mph.

Maximum soil temperature today will be down a degree at 54 after a minimum of 46 this morning. Pan evaporation is forecast at .22 inch today and .24 on Thursday.

On Tuesday, winds were brisk across the entire state with gusts reaching 15 to 30 miles an hour. Velocities tapered off in the evening after the winds added an extra bite to temperatures which were sharply cooler than the previous few days. The cooling and winds followed passage of a cold front Monday evening.

The state's warmest temperature was 59 at Welser, Hagerman and Emmett as readings reached only into the 50s over much of Idaho. Low marks Tuesday morning were mostly in the 20s or low 30s with the state's coldest 17 at Stanleyh.

A few showers lingered along the eastern border early Tuesday but skies over the entire state were clear by afternoon.

In Twin Falls, the pollen count was 64 per cubic meter of air.

The extended forecast calls for dry Friday through Sunday except for a chance of a few showers in the north Sunday. Temperatures will be near normal with highs in the 60s or low 70s and lows in the 30s or low 40s.

Elsewhere in the nation Tuesday, the warmest temperature was 22 at Redmond, Ore., and the coldest was 99 at Ukiah, Calif.

Turkish consul killed

SOMERVILLE, Mass. (UPI) — The honorary Turkish consul general to New England was shot to death as he sat behind the wheel of his car Tuesday night by two men posing as joggers, police said. An Armenian group claimed responsibility.

The bullet-riddled body of Orhan Gunduz, a Turkish-American community leader whose gift shop in nearby Cambridge was the target of a terrorist bomb on March 22, was found slumped in the car's front seat in a quiet residential section of Somerville, a suburb just north of Boston.

It was the second assassination of a Turkish leader in the United States this year, the first occurring on Jan. 28 in Los Angeles. State Department figures showed the Los Angeles incident was the 21st slaying since 1973 in Western Europe and the United States of prominent Turks or their family members.

A man telephoned United Press International shortly after Tuesday's shooting and said: "This is the Justice Commandos of Armenian Genocide. We have just assassinated the Turkish ambassador in Boston." He then hung up.

Armenian groups also called UPI offices in Washington and Los Angeles with similar messages.

Police said Gunduz' late-model white Ford LTD was riddled by as many as 12 bullets through the windshield and on the driver's side. Gunduz had the honorary title of Turkish consul general to New England, although there is no formal Turkish consulate in the region.

Gunduz, dressed in a plaid sports jacket and tie, was driving alone in his car to his home in nearby Nahant. Police believe two men posed as joggers and were waiting on a streetcorner for the car to make a turn. They escaped on foot.

"We heard the gunshots. I said bullets and my friend said 'no, just kids,'" said Domingos Vieire, 18, who worked across the street in a used car lot.

"I ran over to the corner and I saw this guy in a blue (jogging) suit and I saw all this smoke," he said. "I didn't know if they were really gunshots until I got over there."

"I rushed over and saw this guy all shot up," Vieire said. "I ran back into the shop and started screaming and I called the police."

Seven dead in Anchorage killings

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Police Tuesday were investigating two separate shootings in which seven people died within an hour, including four teenagers who were gunned down as they strolled through a recreation area.

The deaths of the two young men and women occurred Monday night about an hour after three people died in a double-murder-suicide at an Anchorage bar.

Police spokesman Jim Rehmann said the four young victims were gunned down about 8:30 p.m. while strolling through Russian Jack Springs, a golf course and recreation area.

The four were believed to have attended a movie and were walking through the general recreation area across a road from the golf course when they were shot, he said.

"This has got to be one of the grisliest nights I've ever seen," said Lt. Doug Jones, head of the police department's violent crimes division. "We're looking at all possibilities at this point."

Jones indicated he had some evidence and accounts from witnesses in the recreation area slayings, but gave no details.

A woman who was jogging through the area told police she saw a body lying in a wooded area and was told by a man to "get out," authorities said.

The park-golf course is bordered by residential areas on three sides and a commercial area on one side. It is intersected by a heavily traveled street and is heavily wooded in the north part where the four young people were killed. The slayings occurred about 200 yards away from the road.

Police knew of no motive for the shootings and no suspect was in custody.

In the other shooting, a man with a pistol walked into the Black Bull Bar and shot a woman and a man, then killed himself, police said. The shooting victims were identified as Jody Coson, 24, and Keith Herff, 62, and the gunman as Donald Pierce, 26. All were from Anchorage.

Parts of USS Boise sunk near Falklands

BOISE (UPI) — A part of Boise history went to the bottom of the South Atlantic on Sunday when British torpedoes sank an Argentine cruiser near the Falkland Islands.

Parts of the USS Boise, the pride of the City of Trees for its heroics during World War II, were on board the General Belgrano when it was torpedoed by a British submarine.

The USS Boise and the General Belgrano, formerly known as the USS Phoenix, were sold by the U.S. Navy to the Argentine government in 1951.

Parts for the ships, both light cruisers of the Brooklyn class, were identical.

In 1978, the Argentines docked the Boise and cannibalized its engines and other equipment to keep the Phoenix in action. Last year, the Argentines sold the remainder of the ship to a salvage yard in Brownsville, Texas, as scrap.

The Boise, built in 1938, earned in a place in military history books for its role in the Battle of Cape Esperance off Guadalcanal in 1942.

A concrete monument along Myrtle Street near Julia Davis Park in Boise was erected in honor of the 107 men of the ship's crew who died during the battle.

The Boise was decommissioned in 1946 and sold in 1951 to Argentina, when renamed the ship Neuve de Julio (the Ninth of July), in honor of the day Argentina declared its independence from Spain in 1816.

Falklands

In other action:

•A long-range British Vulcan bomber from Ascension Island pounded the airport outside the Falklands capital of Port Stanley with 1,000-pound bombs, Britain announced. The raid was a carbon copy of last Saturday's attack and was staged to ensure that the 9,000 Argentine troops on the Falklands could not repair the earlier damage.

•British fighter-bombers also bombed an airfield at Goose Green, 60 miles from Port Stanley, in another follow-up to Saturday's raids that Argentina said took 11 civilian lives.

•Argentina said its ships had rescued a total of 680 survivors from the cruiser General Belgrano, leaving 362 still missing in the frigid sea. The ship, Argentina's second largest, was torpedoed by a British nuclear-powered submarine Sunday and went to the bottom Monday.

In a carefully measured reaction, the State Department in Washington said "the United States regrets any loss of life from the sinking of the British destroyer as well as the Argentine cruiser.

"These additional casualties underscore the urgent need for an early peaceful settlement of this tragic conflict in the South Atlantic."

One of nine destroyers in its class, the 392-foot-long Sheffield was once skippered by Rear Adm. John Woodward, commander of the British South Atlantic fleet.

It was armed with Sea Dart surface-to-air missiles, one 4.5-inch cannon, two 20mm guns and a Lynx helicopter which carried torpedoes.

The Exocet missile used to sink it is a surface-skimming weapon that flies 10-feet above the water and has a range of 28 miles.

The Hinckley trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prosecutors told a jury Tuesday the shooting of President Reagan was a "planned, premeditated" act.

And two law-enforcement officials shot in the attack testified in the case against gunman John W. Hinckley Jr.

But Hinckley's attorney, setting out the insanity defense, portrayed the sandy-haired product of a wealthy family as a loner who tried suicide in the months before last year's shooting. He said Hinckley was consumed by fantasies about movie actress Jodie Foster and murdered Beatle John Lennon.

The lawyer told the jury, however, "There is no defense to offer to suggest that Mr. Hinckley did not commit these acts."

Appearing as government witnesses, Secret Service Agent Timothy McCarthy and retired Washington police officer Thomas Delahanty revived the moments before they were shot March 30, 1981, as the president walked to his armored limousine.

Hinckley, 26, sat motionless, his eyes often downcast. As the case unfolded, he heard himself described as a drifter, cut off from reality and finally turned away from home with the admonition that he must make it on his own.

When court adjourned for the day in late afternoon, prosecutors said they will complete their case today, calling perhaps seven more witnesses. Nine came to the stand Tuesday.

McCarthy, who threw his body in front of Reagan when the pistol cracked, said he never saw the accused gunman.

"I was trying to place myself between the apparent danger and the president," said McCarthy, now recovered from a chest wound.

Delahanty, who was hit near the spinal cord and has since retired from the police force, said "I turned to my right. At that time I heard a single shot followed by four or five more in rapid succession."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger Adelman, describing a photograph showing Hinckley in a crowd outside the Washington hotel where Reagan was shot, told the jury,

"He's waiting with a gun in his hand. He's waiting to shoot the president. He's waiting to kill him."

"The evidence will demonstrate that the shooting was a deliberate, planned, premeditated and, indeed, a calculated act," Adelman said, noting Hinckley fired from a crouch position and had practiced his marksmanship at a Colorado rifle range.

But defense lawyer Vincent Fuller said Hinckley had a troubled childhood, lived in a fantasy world and tried to commit suicide with an overdose of drugs six months before he shot the president and three other men.

Only Monday, prosecutors had asked U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker to bar defense lawyers from introducing testimony about another Hinckley suicide try — an attempt to hang himself in an Army stockade 7½ months after his arrest.

Opening arguments in the case, played out before a packed courtroom carefully watched by U.S. marshals, lasted a half-hour for each side before prosecutors called a series of witnesses.

The jury of seven women and five men were well-dressed and attentive for the most part. Hinckley's parents were not present.

Hinckley — who faces life in prison if convicted — sat motionless through the first day of testimony. When a policeman identified Hinckley as the man arrested on gun charges in Nashville, Tenn., the defendant looked down and closed his eyes.

Outlining the government's case, Adelman said prosecutors would show Hinckley practiced shooting at a target range, collected articles on previous assassination attempts and selected exploding "devastator" bullets for his mission.

The barrage of gunfire on the gray afternoon of March 30, 1981, hit Reagan in the left lung, critically wounded White House press secretary James Brady, and also cut down a Secret Service agent and a Washington policeman.

"This was not a random or thoughtless act," Adelman said of the attempted assassination.

"Our evidence will show that Hinckley shot four people with six shots . . . that he mowed down two people that stood between him and President Reagan," the prosecutor said.

Deliveries continue

UPS settles with Teamsters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United Parcel Service and the Teamsters union reached tentative agreement on new contract terms for 80,000 workers Tuesday night, averting a threatened strike against the nationwide delivery firm.

Federal mediator Nicholas Fidandis announced the settlement shortly after 7 p.m. EDT at the end of nearly nine hours of continuous bargaining.

"The Teamsters and United Parcel Service have reached a settlement on the National Master Agreement, subject to membership ratification," Fidandis said in the terse statement.

No details of the tentative agreement were released.

Parcel Service spokesman Daniel Buckley said the Greenwich, Conn.-based firm would have no comment until today.

United Parcel Service picks up and delivers about 8 million parcels daily.

Initially United Parcel said it would not pick up packages today if a strike was imminent, but earlier Tuesday modified its stance, saying a decision would not be made until today.

The last-stretch bargaining was conducted at the national headquarters of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, the same location where three hours of talks occurred Monday.

Last Friday, when the old agreement expired, the union set a possible strike deadline for today at midnight, giving the company five days advance notice in return for an agreement that any subsequent contract would be retroactive to May 1.

Fidandis called United Parcel negotiator Charles Buckridge and Joseph Cotter, chairman of the Teamsters' negotiating committee, to Washington after Friday's notice of a possible strike.

Haig explains relations with Cuba

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Alexander Haig said Tuesday the United States is prepared to resume relations with Cuba if Havana moderates its "offensive" policy of interventionism.

Haig's testimony before a Senate appropriations subcommittee indicated that Washington and Havana are engaged in "sensitive diplomatic activity" aimed at making relations more normal.

But Haig said the United States finds Soviet-supported Cuban policies "offensive to us," especially in Central America where he said Cuba is exploiting local socio-economic tensions.

The secretary of state also reported that the Soviet Union and Cuba have offered "blandishments" to Argentina in the Falklands crisis, but said Argentina has assured Washington it has rejected them.

Haig met last year in Mexico City with Cuban Vice President Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, and retired Army Gen. Vernon Walters, Haig's diplomatic troubleshooter for Latin America, is said to have visited Cuba this spring.

"It's been our long-standing policy not to discuss sensitive diplomatic activity of the kind your question touches upon," Haig told Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., who asked him about the contacts regarding Cuba.

But, Haig said, "should Cuba — not by words, by assessable actions — change, moderate and redirect what has been unacceptable in the international activities on their part, the United States would welcome a normalization of relationships."

Ceremony to announce school prayer plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has invited more than 100 people "interested in prayer" to a Rose Garden ceremony Thursday where he is expected to propose a constitutional amendment to put prayer back in public schools.

The size of the group called into the flower-filled garden just outside the Oval Office signals the importance Reagan places on the event. Gatherings there normally are limited to a few dozen people.

Evangelist Jerry Falwell, head of the Moral Majority, said it was his understanding that Reagan "is going to propose" a constitutional amendment to authorize voluntary group prayer in public schools.

According to published reports, White House staff members are drafting an amendment for the president to introduce.

"We would give it our wholehearted support . . . as long as the key word is 'voluntary,'" said Falwell, who is among those invited to the ceremony to mark the National Day of Prayer.

Reagan was outspoken during his campaign against court decisions that banned prayer in public schools, and in recent appearances has again picked up that theme.

His campaign rhetoric was successful in wooing religious groups into his camp and he acted last month to deliver on another of his promises, urging Congress to approve tuition tax credits for parents whose children attend private schools, which often are church-related.

White House officials refused Tuesday to announce the names of anyone invited to the Thursday event. "As a matter of policy, we never reveal in advance who has been invited or has accepted invitations," said Morton Blackwell, a special assistant in the office of public liaison.

"He's going to greet a bunch of invited people . . . interested in prayer," Blackwell said, adding, "It's premature to say what the president is going to over say."

"We'll just have to wait and see who comes," said assistant press secretary Anson Franklin.

In one of its most controversial decisions, the Supreme Court ruled in 1962 that recital of an official state prayer by public school pupils is an "establishment of religion" forbidden by the First Amendment to the Constitution.

And, in a follow-up ruling in 1963, the high court said states may not require students to read Bible passages or recite the Lord's Prayer at the start of each school day, even if individual students may be excused.

The latest school prayer action by the court came in January, when the justices upheld a decision overturning a Louisiana law that would have let children start each school day with a voluntary prayer.

Congress repeatedly has turned back proposals for school-sponsored prayer, although the idea has gained new currency with the emergence of a Republican majority in the Senate and the emergence of the so-called religious right as a major political factor.

Notice to Telephone Customers

WE ARE PROPOSING CHANGES IN THE RATES FOR CALLING CANADA.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company has filed with the Federal Communications Commission a plan, to be effective July 29, 1982, to restructure rates for long distance calls between the United States and Canada. The restructure will result in rate increases and decreases but is designed to have no overall effect on interstate earnings.

Here are the proposed changes

- Establish uniform 1-minute-initial period charges for all classes of calls. The initial 1-minute rate will vary by mileage and will range from 27¢ (0-8 miles) to 93¢ (2221-4000 miles). Additional minute rates will range from 12¢ to 78¢, depending upon distance.
- Revise rates for most calls with changes ranging from a 2¢ reduction (calls over 2220 miles) to a 15¢ increase (calls 31-50 miles) for the initial minute charges. Changes in additional minute rates will vary from a 6¢ reduction to a 10¢ increase, depending upon distance.
- Separate operator charges from basic usage rates and introduce uniform service charges for Operator Station calls ($1.25) and Person-to-Person calls ($3.00). The appropriate operator service charge will be added to the usage rate and is the same regardless of the length of call or time of day.

A french fry for your vote, please

The apathy of the American non-voter is a subject sure to get the tongues of editorial writers everywhere lashing, but generally, the effect is no more than a hefty yawn.

Nonetheless, a story on the subject from California prompts us to again toast the electorate's feet on the fire.

To get people to vote in the June primary, a Hollywood (where else?) producer is offering thousands of dollars in prizes, ranging from bags of french fries to a trip to Hawaii. The promoter hopes to make the June 5 primary a "fun election," and he expects a turnout increase of about 50 percent.

To enter this election sweepstakes, a voter must send in the identification stub given after the ballot is cast. Winners will be drawn June 21, and up to 150,000 prizes are expected to be distributed at a cost of about $5 million, including $100,000 worth of french fries donated by McDonalds.

The producer happens to be a campaign consultant to a gubernatorial candidate, although there is no connection between the voter's choice and who gets a contest stub. Not yet, anyway.

We could take the cynical approach in all of this and note the contrast between the contest and the turnout in El Salvador's recent election, where peasants reportedly dodged bullets and tramped miles to vote. Democracy depends on that kind of commitment, and sometimes, on that level of risk.

Or we could dismiss the contest as just another weird California trip, another bizarre incident from the land of perpetual brain fry. An image comes to mind of a "Tuesday Night Live" in which tons of french fries cascade over unsuspecting voters, while some talk-show huckster hustles votes.

We'd like to see an increase in the turnout in every primary, whether its in California or Idaho, this spring, not because voters have a chance to fly to Hawaii on vacation, but because the process of democracy depends on it.

Group's disclaimer wise

We are glad to see the Moral Majority's national office disavowing the personal questions being asked of Idaho political candidates this spring by a group calling itself the Moral Majority of the Idaho Panhandle Area.

The national office Monday said some of the local group's questions were inappropriate. We agree.

Nobody wants 'custody' of the deficit

WASHINGTON — The two biggest, or anyway the two most persistent, news events this spring have been the budget negotiations between the White House and Congress, and the Falkland negotiations in Britain, Argentina and points north, south, east and west.

Both finally outlasted Israeli withdrawal from the Sinai in headline durability.

At this writing, there still was faint hope the Falkland talks might coalesce, but the budget discussions appeared dead in the water. Thus, prospects for a full-scale budget battle grow more thinkable daily.

Any day now, we may see an armada of administration fiscal advisers steaming up Capitol Hill to spread a safety net over the House Ways and Means Committee.

Then, the battle will be joined, although there is some confusion over which side certain forces are joining. Symbolism counts for a lot.

One sore point is the question of whether liberals or conservatives shall have jurisdiction over the federal deficit.

Historians are agreed the deficit has been in liberal hands for most of the past 150 years. But with their seizure of the Office of Budget and Management, conservatives got into a commanding position to assert their own sovereignty.

From the vantage at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., or somewhere in that neighborhood, they were able to launch successful assaults on the federal tax structure, plus make inroads on social and regulatory programs.

Nevertheless, President Reagan has continued to deny the conservative offensive created the recession, and liberal congressmen have been equally reluctant to claim responsibility.

Unless that deadlock can be broken, there is little chance of heading off an impasse.

Some of the even-handed meditors who participated in shuttle diplomacy between Capitol Hill and the White House proposed two compromise arrangements:

1. Congress would continue to have dominion over the deficit during the current fiscal year, with White House authority gradually being extended until full deficit control was acquired in fiscal 1984.

2. Congress and the White House would share equal custody of the deficit until such time as the economy moved either up or down.

Neither proposal was acceptable to either side.

What everyone wants to know now is which side will win should the dispute degenerate into an open clash in the Gallup Poll.

Political analysts tell me that liberals, with their entrenched fortifications on Capitol Hill, likely will dominate the coming primaries. But conservatives, with their "hit list" of budgetary opponents, are given a good chance of coming out ahead in the general election next fall.

Apathy is a good tonic for activists

There is more activism around than I care to shake a stick at, not being all that active. There are civic activists, and moral activists, and environmental activists. Labor and management activists. Zero-Growth activists in such disparate fields as population, nuclear arms and long-term bonds.

An activist gets hold of an idea, somehow, and decides it is a Great Truth. Thereupon, he appoints himself an activist leader — rarely putting the elevation to a democratic vote, wherein he might get clobbered — and sets out to shame the rest of us into accepting the pristine rightness of his self-divined vision.

Why should I? Or you? Who says they've got the right answers to a question that you and I may have no interest in in the first place? I've got my own problems, none of which are connected intimately to snail-darters, Three Mile Island, fluoridation of the water supply or, at this late stage, population growth.

The most activist thing I have done lately is become an apathist.

Apathy is my game, social sloth and civic ennui its handmaidens, one washing the other (hands, not maidens). If I were not so apathetic about it all, I might organize a coalition of the like-minded who instead of being in the forefront would remain in the backrear, either the left rear or the right rear, depending on orientation.

We could call this ad hoc outfit something like World Humanity Organized to Counter Arrogant Redeemers Entirely, or WHOCARE.

Volunteers only. No salesman will call. Not sold in stores. No monetary pledges will be solicited. No calls to join a march on City Hall, The Capitol, Indian reservations, Alabama bridges, bean fields, nude beaches, high school libraries, effete Eastern Establishment newspapers, missile sites, refugee camps, grocery stores that don't give stamps, grocery stores that do give stamps, and food stamp stores that give groceries, nor to assemble at the Torch of International Friendship and hurl imprecations: at (a) Argentina, or (b) Britain, or (h) Haig.

Instead, members of WHOCARE in good standing would observe a few basic principles centering on non-involvement in causes other than their own.

A few simple other rules: Vote, if you must, but don't expect any change as a result. Also, to avoid argument and involvement, it is OK to sign petitions for or against almost anything as long as you do not use your right name and address. Earnest missionaries tapping on your door in mid-nap may be sent off in some confusion if you respond briefly that their concern for your soul is appreciated but unneeded, all household members being immortal.

Servicemen's wives should not share in retirement benefits without spouse

I read with great interest your opinion page in the April 25 edition of your paper. I normally bypass any article by Ellen Goodman because, in the year that I have been reading your paper, her missives have generally demonstrated her penchant for espousing feminist causes, coupled with a cavalier disregard for the facts, and-or rational thinking.

I am a retired Army major who served a total of 25 years as both an officer and enlisted soldier. I know from first experience that there are, indeed, problems involved in divorces concerning military personnel. I feel qualified and inclined to state that, in this article titled "Divorce, Army style, leaves the wife out in the cold," Goodman has exceeded herself in demonstrating gross ignorance of her subject.

I will be the first to acknowledge that a woman who shares the trials and tribulations of a 20-year military career should reasonably expect to share in the rewards of that career. A woman who shares less than the full 20 years should receive exactly the same as any soldier who puts in less than 20 years: Nothing!

Military retirement is a benefit received for a minimum of 20 honorable years. "Bad time" does not count. Should a wife whose service was less than honorable expect to receive a share of her husband's retirement? If it can be proven that the wife was a detriment to her husband's career, is she legally liable? Can she be sued for the difference in retirement pay between the grades of, say, major and lieutenant colonel?

There are problems, indeed. In today's Army of running-scared politicians any incident involving a soldier's family, or the mere allegation thereof, can have an adverse impact. It is a military axiom that a woman cannot further your career, but she can sure as hell ruin it.

Today, a soldier can be divorced while overseas without his knowledge or consent. The first inkling he has of the problem is a final divorce decree. If he resists, he finds his military pay attached, again without his knowledge or consent. He will receive precious little in the way of help from most of his military superiors. Military lawyers are restricted to advice only.

I am glad to see that the military brass are, at long last, fighting back. The Army has for too long bent over backward to appease special interest groups and minorities at the expense of military readiness.

It takes no extraordinary powers of deduction to realize that a professional soldier at the 12-year level will get out if he is faced with the prospect of giving half his retirement to a woman to whom he was married only six years. Even worse off is the fellow who has two unsuccessful marriages. Is he expected to give half his retirement pay to each of his former spouses?

What Goodman and Rep. Schroeder fail to realize is, in the final analysis, the military wife is not in the military. She has a demanding life at times, but the rewards are there, also. She supports her military man, at least the good ones do, but she is not a soldier. She does not go to war. She does not kill in defense of her country. She is not expected to give her life in combat.

Her problems may be many, but they can never approach those of her husband — the soldier. He can earn that retirement without her; she should not share in it without him.

Constitution deserves observance

WASHINGTON — It may seem absurd to say it, more than five years before the event, but time's a-wasting. If we are to benefit from a truly first-rate observance of the bicentennial of the Constitution, certain things need to be done within the next few months.

This should be a glorious period for all those who revere our fundamental law. Good round-numbered opportunities will come along not only for re-examination of the Constitution itself, but also for study of the towering figures in American history who strode large upon the stage.

I have a theory about these things. It goes to this effect — that genius flares across the eons like novae in the heavens, suddenly brightening and then fading.

We marvel at the glory that was Greece; in a relatively short span of years, that glory produced Aristophanes, Euripides, Sophocles, Socrates and Plato. Three or four centuries pass, and suddenly we find the grandeur that was Rome — Seneca, Cicero, Ovid, Catullus, Cato the Younger. Dark ages pass and the Renaissance flares — Michaelangelo, Titian, Bellini, Leonardo da Vinci, Botticelli. The arts subside, then Shakespeare, Marlowe, Johnson.

We witnessed one of those prodigious flarings of political genius in our own land, stretching roughly from the birth of Thomas Jefferson in 1743 to the death of John C. Calhoun in 1850.

Think of it! Here were these tiny, insignificant colonies of Great Britain, fewer than 4 million men and women, only 24 urban areas — none larger than 50,000 population — few opportunities for higher education or intellectual fermentation. Yet what a galaxy of stars the time produced: Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Hamilton, Henry, Franklin, Pendleton, Wythe, Jay, Marshall — the list goes on and on.

The combined genius of these men produced the Constitution of 1787, debated its ratification in 1788 and went on to promulgate the Bill of Rights in 1791. Their work has endured marvelously endured.

Yes, the Constitution has flaws — any critic can pick a few nits here and there — but Gladstone's famous description is not overblown. In the universe of political thought, "the American Constitution is the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man," he said.

What is to be done to mark the occasion? Three or four proposals are languishing in the Congress. In the House, Fernand St. Germain of Rhode Island has proposed a federal planning commission. His bill, curiously, went to a subcommittee on the census and population, and has not been heard from again. In the Senate, a subcommittee has held hearings on similar proposals by Sens. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., Charles Mathias, R-Md., and Arlen Specter, R-Pa. Nothing is moving.

If we are to avoid the unhappy experience that developed with the 1976 bicentennial of independence, some vigorous leadership had better come along soon. Until John Warner took over the '76 bicentennial, the whole affair was bogged down in incompetence and partisan politics.

I venture no particular recommendations on how the observances should be coordinated. A West Coast business man, Donald R. Lawrenz, a true constitutional enthusiast, has proposed that the task be assigned to a strengthened Federal Council on the Arts and Humanities. Maybe so. The pending bills propose a bipartisan ad-hoc commission with an executive director. That might be better.

In any event, it's time to get moving. Some encouraging movement already is evident in the academic sector. A Center for the Study of the American Constitution has been formed at the University of Wisconsin in Madison. There, the multi-volumed "Documentary History of the Ratification" is progressing nicely. The College of William and Mary in Williamsburg has received a large private grant for a Center for the Study of the Bill of Rights.

The next 10 years promise grand occasions — if only the right planning and preparation are undertaken.

The American Revolution bicentennial was great good fun — fireworks, tall ships, battle re-enactments, the rockets' red glare. It commemorated historic action. Observance of the constitutional bicentennial will commemorate historic ideas. Let's do it right.

PUC asks high court to reconsider ruling

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission asked the state Supreme Court Tuesday to reconsider a ruling that has tossed out a hookup fee for Washington Water Power Co.'s new electric space-heating customers.

"Without explanation or rationale, the court has overruled precedent concerning the factors that the commission may take into account in setting rates and charges, and has by judicial fiat limited the commission to consideration of the factors listed in its opinion; but found nowhere in the statutes," commissioners said in a 42-page memorandum supporting their petition for a rehearing before the justices.

The Supreme Court on April 15 ruled in favor of an Idaho State Homebuilders' Association appeal of the Washington Water Power hookup fee.

Commissioners earlier had ordered the utility to charge new electric space-heating customers a fee of $50 per kilowatt in an attempt to charge more of the true cost of providing service.

WWP had not objected to the hookup fee — but Idaho Power Co. did file an appeal with the Supreme Court of the separate $50-fee commissioners imposed on that utility. Idaho Power has not pursued the appeal since justices ruled on the WWP case.

The PUC memo charged that the Supreme Court "has fundamentally restructured its relationship with the commission and has usurped the role of the Legislature."

"It is the Legislature — not the court — that is authorized to change or overrule the commission's factual and policy determinations in those circumstances where reasonable minds may differ," it said.

The PUC also noted in its petition that members of a legislative committee charged with reviewing the commission did not recommend removal of the $50 fee — and some members said the fee was a better tool for encouraging electricity conservation than inverted electric rates.

Group's survey uses House letterhead

BOISE (UPI) — A questionnaire funded by the Idaho Conservative Political Action Committee is being distributed to southwestern Idaho voters under a "House of Representatives" letterhead, Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, confirmed Tuesday.

Winchester said he signed his name to the cover letter — and asked for the six-item questionnaire to be returned either to the Statehouse in Boise or his Nampa post office box — because "people more aptly respond to a legislator than to a committee."

The letter at first glance may appear to be official legislative stationery, with the heading, "House of Representatives State of Idaho" in blue printing on white paper. It does not, however, include the state seal or gold lettering normally found on official House stationery, secretaries in the House speaker's office said.

Winchester said he did not believe it was questionable to exclude the committee's name from the letter and questionnaire it distributed because "it's for legislative work that we're doing this."

"I get extremely frustrated when the whole world takes a giant step to the right, and the Idaho Legislature goes off to the left," Winchester said. "I don't feel the Legislature is representative of the people many times.

"We're just trying to work with those (conservative) people, bring pressure to bear for conservative principles."

The letter says no state money was used for the mailing — and asks those responding to make donations of "a dollar or two" to help defray expenses.

It says some lawmakers involved in the last session were concerned that they hear too often from "organized minorities" and not enough from average citizens.

"With that in mind, a number of us decided to put together some of our own money and ask the people directly about a few of the critical issues we worked on this year, and which are bound to surface again next year," the cover letter said.

Questions covered various topics, including a constitutional amendment prohibiting abortion, mandatory jail sentences for repeat drunken drivers and enactment of a right-to-work law.

When asked to identify other legislators mentioned in the letter, Winchester said only that the political action committee distributed the document. He said other lawmakers are not on the committee, which is composed of "kind of a group of close friends." He declined to reveal additional names.

The secretary of State's office identified Winchester as the chairman of the political committee and the treasurer as Mary Flory, whose employers at a Nampa accounting firm said she was not available for comment Tuesday.

Property tax petition adds more signatures

BOISE (UPI) — An initiative proposal to give Idahoans a 50 percent property-tax exemption on the assessed value of their homes has "at least a 50-50 chance" of gaining enough signatures for a spot on the November election ballot, the petition drive's coordinator said Tuesday.

Leaders of the Residential Tax Initiative announced at a news conference the delivery of more than 6,600 registered voters' signatures to the secretary of State's office — hiking the total of verified signatures to 10,090.

To attain a place on the general election ballot for the initiative, about 19,000 additional valid signatures must be turned into the secretary of State by July 2.

Ken Robison, a Democratic candidate for the state Senate from Boise and head of the initiative drive, estimated the chance of collecting the total required 29,000 signatures in less than two months was "at least 50-50, and I think it's better than that."

He said the group at this point is about 2,000 signatures behind the goal it set when the drive was launched early this year, but he blamed the lag on unusually poor weather which has keep more people indoors.

The largest handicap to be overcome to get enough signatures is finding enough people to circulate petitions, Robison said.

If placed on the ballot and approved by the voters, the initiative would give residential property owners a 50 percent exemption on the assessed value of their homes, up to $50,000. It would replace the existing one-year 20 percent exemption enacted by the 1982 Legislature.

The drive's backers say a larger exemption is needed to halt a shift in the property tax load from business, corporate and utility property to residential property.

Robison said Idaho residential property taxes jumped 370 percent from 1970 to 1980, while utility property taxes fell 32 percent and other non-residential property taxes increased 62 percent.

Unless the initiative becomes law, the shift will increase by $4 million to $5 million statewide in each of the next few years, he said.

Melting snow near McCall spills sewage into river

McCALL (UPI) — McCall's sewer system is overloaded from melting snow and has been discharging up to 200,000 gallons a day of raw sewage and water into the North Fork of the Payette River since April 24, officials say.

The system is overflowing at a lift station on the main sewer line, which crosses the river about half a mile downstream from the river's outlet at Payette Lake. The lift station is one of two that pump sewage over a hill to the city's sewage treatment plant, southwest of McCall.

Pumps are working to capacity, and nothing can be done to correct the problem until all the snow is melted, perhaps in two weeks, city officials said.

"We really can't do anything now," said McCall Mayor James Lyons. "I hope in a couple of weeks it will be all right."

Residents are being asked to conserve water in the afternoons, when seepage of ground water and water from melting snow into manholes and old, leaky sewer lines is the greatest.

The infiltration of McCall's sewer lines by ground water has been a problem for several years and contributes an estimated 50 percent of the flow to the city wastewater treatment plant.

The South Central District Health Department has warned residents near the river, especially children, to stay out of the still-frigid river and away from banks because of disease-causing bacteria from the sewage.

The dilution of the sewage by ground water reduces the health hazard, said Grover Partee, discharge permits coordinator for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in Boise.

WOMEN'S WORK

Q. What sort of job is getting the biggest increase of women workers?
A. Bartending.

Q. What does the "Dai" in Japan's Datsun mean?
A. "Running rabbit."

Q. Why are a dancer's tights called "leotards"?
A. To honor the French acrobat who invented the trapeze, Jules Leotard. He was the first to wear tights.

Q. Do suicides run in families?
A. In some families, evidently. Statistically, the children of suicidal parents are far more likely than others to try suicide themselves.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day finds it possible for you to impress others with your charm. But later some of them may feel imposed upon. Maintain kindness throughout the day.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The morning is likely to be a happy time for you, but later the tide turns, so remain steadfast and do nothing unwise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A good day to come to a fine understanding with associates. Friends can give you important data you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Follow the good advice of a business expert. Look to new outlets that could give you added income in the future.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take the time to improve your appearance and get rid of that feeling of being inadequate. Strive for happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Come to the aid of a friend who is having a difficult time now. Attend to your duties with enthusiasm. Think along constructive lines.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Forget your hunger for pleasure now and stick to important business matters. Make your environment more comfortable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Handle career duties in a positive manner but don't step on the toes of co-workers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You could receive a message that is to your liking, but don't let it interfere with regular routines. Be logical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle routine chores early in the day for best results. A heart-to-heart talk with loved on clears up uncertainty.

CARRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) First converse with associates and then do the work expected of you. Sidestep one who opposes you. Express happiness. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Come to the right accord with fellow workers and be sure to do your share of the work. Relax at home tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Attend your obligations even though some of them may be an unpleasant task. Budget your money expenses wisely.

IF YOUR CHILD WAS BORN TODAY...he or she should be given a good education along practical lines in order to have security and prosperity later in life. The field of investigations is fine here. Be sure to give good ethical training early in life.

Fair sales bewilder vendors

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Parking lot owners and trinket peddlers are going begging for business as dreams of a World's Fair bonanza have turned to nightmares during the opening week of the extravaganza.

Sales of World's Fair souvenirs have been so poor since the fair opened Saturday that some peddlers were pulling up stakes Tuesday. Others were reluctant to give up because of hefty investments they made to rent hundreds of slices of pavement.

Pieces of sidewalk the city put on the auction block went for anywhere from $1,000 to $20,000.

"People have taken their life savings to pop up stands on every corner around here," said Jean Powell, who hawks fudge on a street corner two blocks from the 72-acre fairgrounds.

"I'm afraid it's going to get really pathetic. There's no business," she said.

Parking lot owners who expected cars to cram their spaces during the six-month fair found themselves battling a price war to lure drivers. Most parking spots started at $6 a day, but many lots dropped prices to as low as $4 by Tuesday.

"The competition went to $5, so we're going to $4," said Winston Frazier, assistant manager of one downtown lot.

Fair crowds have been larger than expected the past two days after visits ran just 40,000 Sunday — half the projected attendance.

About 28,000 people passed through the gates the first 30 minutes they were open Tuesday, fair officials said. The fair tallied 57,300 visits Monday, about 17,000 more than expected.

Viking ship sets sail to Norway

DULUTH, Minn. (UPI) — A 76-foot wooden Viking ship, which a high school teacher built like the marauding warships that roamed north European seas 1,000 years ago, will set sail Thursday on a trans-Atlantic trip to Norway.

Robert Asp, a Moorhead High School teacher, spent 10 years building the white oak ship in a potato warehouse. He died of cancer 16 months ago before he could carry out the voyage but his family and others will make the trip for him.

"Nature offers no guarantees," said Tom Asp, 24, the builder's youngest son and a member of the 12-man crew. "But it's attainable and we're going to give it our best shot."

The vessel will be skippered by a Viking ship expert, Erik Rudstrom, 61, a Norwegian, who has sailed since he was 10 years old and who took a smaller Viking ship from Norway to Iceland in 1974.

The ship rested in the Knife River marine on Lake Superior Tuesday while the crew prepared for the voyage.

"Seasickness may be the most serious problem," Rudstrom said. Beyond that, he added, "problems happen, and you take care of them."

Shoot-to-kill dog decree irks outsiders

GRANBY, Mass. (UPI) — For $6,500, selectmen in this farming community could be convinced to rescind a controversial shoot-to-kill edict which allows the dog officer to shoot stray dogs.

That's the cost of running a dog pound.

After reading letters at the board's regular meeting protesting the ordinance — envoked to stop livestock mauling in this western Massachusetts Town — Selectman Richard Progulske announced Monday the town was open for donations.

"In essence what he was saying, put real crudely, is if these people are being so critical they ought to put their money where their mouth is," said Board Chairman Robert Farr.

Farr said the board has received about a dozen letters protesting the law, all from out-of-towners.

"We've got letters from California, New York, Boston, you name it, mostly from people who are very much concerned about the dogs but not too concerned about the animals," he said. About 60 sheep, chickens and pigs recently have been attacked by dogs running in packs.

"We have yet to receive the first word from any Granby townsperson either pro, con or commenting on it at all," he said.

One Springfield woman wrote: "Who set you up as a dictator? My husband died in one of our wars because of people like you." Farr said the writer described herself as "one of the millions of pet-lovers in this country."

A woman from Hartford, Conn., wrote: "I'm shocked that you have passed a ruling for police to shoot stray dogs. This method of animal-control puts us back in the dark ages."

Farr said a dog pound would help alleviate the problem, allowing the dog officer to get the dogs off the street with residents hit with a fine to get their pets back.

Farr said no provision has been made for donations. If money came in to stop the edict, he said they wouldn't turn it away and would probably create a revolving fund.

"I hope there are a couple of millionaires out there who want to contribute to us in the interest of dogs," he said.

Roadblock nets 100 violators

FORREST CITY, Ark. (UPI) — Stacking traffic up for miles on one of Arkansas' busiest highways, state police Tuesday issued more than 100 tickets and jailed 46 people on charges ranging from overweight trucks to marijuana possession.

A state police spokesman said 145 warning tickets were issued in the first 12 hours of the roadblock. Forty-six people were in the St. Francis County Jail. The total tickets did not include those for overweight trucks.

The 24-hour blanket roadblock on Interstate 40 between Little Rock and Memphis began at 6 p.m. Monday. Traffic from Memphis to Little Rock was stacked up for miles as each car and truck was stopped.

For the first six hours, the check was conducted at a rest area located about two miles east of Forrest City. Authorities moved the roadblock to a rest area just east of Palestine then rotated it between the stops, blocking all westbound and then eastbound traffic on the route.

Charges arising from the roadblock included driving while intoxicated, possession of marijuana, illegal possession of guns and overweight trucks.

Word of the roadblock spread by citizens band radio and several truckers turned off the road to wait at a restaurant. Two unhitched their trailers and left them on the shoulder of the road but state police cars posted on the median and at nearby exits prevented most escapes.

World briefs

American killed in Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Rebel radio reported Tuesday an American fighting alongside Salvadoran guerrillas was killed by government troops during the largest offensive ever mounted by the U.S.-backed regime.

The guerrillas' clandestine Radio Venceremos said Joseph David Anderson was shot April 27 in the government's drive to "oust" guerrillas from northeastern Morazan province.

Anderson, whose age and hometown were not available, died in the village of Poza Honda about 70 miles northeast of San Salvador, the radio said.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said officials were checking records to determine if Anderson registered at the mission when he entered the country, but said they had no knowledge he had been killed.

China reshuffles government

PEKING (UPI) — Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping clinched an important victory Tuesday by winning legislative approval to shape the central government the way he wants in one of the biggest reshuffles ever in China.

Eleven vice premiers were ousted from office, and 23 new ministers were appointed.

The shakeup announced by the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress packed the Cabinet — called the State Council — with relatively younger and more professional people who back Deng's goal of modernization. Deng supporters already in place were not touched.

The mass removal of vice premiers was intended more to streamline the top government hierarchy than to evict political foes.

Begin won't leave settlements

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin's policy statement Tuesday ruled out dismantling Jewish settlements in occupied Arab lands as part of any future peace with Arab states.

Parliament narrowly approved the statement.

Though procedural, with little practical consequence, the 58-54 parliament vote with two abstentions reflected a deep split between the government and the main opposition Labor Party over the issue of Jewish settlement in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Algerian officials die in crash

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Iran Tuesday accused Iraq of shooting down a plane carrying 10 top Algerian diplomats, including Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia, who died when their jet crashed en route to Tehran.

Iraq ignored the charges and President Saddam Hussein cabled Algerian President Chadli Benjedid to express "regret and sorrow" over the loss of the delegation Monday that was on a peace mission to end the 19-month Iran-Iraq war.

Curfews follow Poland riots

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Riots erupted in the port city of Szczecin for a second straight day Tuesday.

Poland's martial law rulers reimposed curfews — lifted only 48 hours earlier — to crush waves of violent protest that swept Warsaw and 12 other cities.

Interior Minister Gen. Czeslaw Kiszczak told parliament 1,372 people were arrested and 72 police were injured — 10 seriously — during night-long battles Monday between riot police and an estimated 100,000 pro-Solidarity protesters across the country.

The official news agency PAP said renewed "street rioting" occurred in Szczecin "similar to yesterday" and that demonstrators "shouted anti-state slogans, destroyed public facilities." It added ominously: "Order was restored by law enforcements organs."

In Washington, Secretary of State Alexander Haig viewed the reimposition of sanction "with concern, great sympathy and a sense of deep responsibility," but with no "basis for surprise."

The White House "deplored the use of force" — which it called "a reminder that the demands for free expression have not been met."

Kiszczak also reported renewed clashes in Szczecin Tuesday, where rioters burned down a hotel at a police barracks Monday and stoned firefighters putting out another blaze in the most serious of the day's violence.

"Serious incidents took place in Szczecin again today," he said, giving no further details about the trouble in the Baltic coast city 450 miles northwest of Warsaw. Military chief Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, meeting in emergency session with the ruling Military Council, ordered the reimposition of nightly curfews in Warsaw and other unspecified cities in response to the clashes, PAP said.

PAP said telephone service was severed, cultural and sporting events were canceled and the use of private cars was banned in some cities "as a consequence of the latest brawls."

Warsaw's mayor issued a proclamation imposing a double curfew from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. for Poles under 18 and from midnight to 5 a.m. for those 18 and over. The order also shut down student clubs, discos and entertainment centers in the capital in a bid to keep youths off the streets.

The new crackdown came less than 48 hours after an 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew was lifted throughout the nation — setting the stage for the most widespread protest against the military since the imposition of martial law Dec. 13.

PAP said there was rioting Monday in Warsaw, Gdansk, Szczecin, Krakow, Lodz, Lublin, Bydgoszcz, Orun, Gydnia, Elbiag, Swidnik and "other cities." Travelers also reported clashes in Mielec and Rzeszow.

The most violent battles between riot police and demonstrators appeared to have occured in Szczecin, Gdansk and Warsaw.

Simply Sumptuous Strawberry Desserts

We know spring is nigh when the first crop of strawberries appears in our markets. What a lift from winter doldrums to greet the beautiful red fruit and ponder the many ways to enjoy it.

Here are three simply sensational strawberry desserts designed for those whose pondering and preparation time is limited! They are beautiful, delicious and streamlined thanks to the cooperative effort between fresh berries and "convenience" products like Jell-O gelatin, Jell-O pudding and Cool Whip frozen whipped topping.

"Elegant but easy" is a good way to describe this Strawberry Chocolate Torte that "marries" two popular flavors in a scrumptious cake that serves 8 to 10 people. If you have the time and inclination, bake four 9-inch layers from "scratch." Or, you may prefer to use a cake mix and bake two 9-inch layers; cut them each horizontally into two. If you choose the quicker route, be sure to cool the layers completely before cutting them with a sharp knife. You may find it helpful to mark off the layers' midpoint with toothpicks before halving them. Incidentally, cake freezes beautifully, so you can bake the cake layers in advance of making the filling and assembling the torte.

For best results, thaw the layers slowly and do not remove the freezer wrapping until you are ready to proceed with the recipe.

For a truly quick-and-easy dessert treat, try the Strawberry Almond Pie. The delicious fresh strawberry filling is made in minutes by combining packages of fruit flavor gelatin and pudding and pie filling mix with water in a saucepan...bringing the mixture to a boil... then stirring in the remaining ingredients.

Dress up the pie with a garnish of frozen whipped topping or serve it plain. Either way, it's sure to become a "regular" at your house.

Finally, the impressive-looking Strawberry Tart is a perfect example of the wonders you can create when you combine fresh strawberries with handy "staples"—fruit flavor gelatin and frozen whipped topping. Beneath the fresh, gelatin-glazed berries is a wholesome, creamy filling of sour cream and whipped topping. The rich, crisp shortbread crust is easily prepared in a 9-inch springform or flan pan.

Celebrate spring this year with a fresh crop of strawberry desserts made quicker, easier and better with fruit flavor gelatin, pudding and frozen whipped topping.

Strawberry Chocolate Torte

- 1-3/4 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1-3/4 cups sugar
- 1-1/4 teaspoons baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
- 2/3 cup butter or margarine
- 4 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted and cooled
- 1-1/4 cups water
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 3 eggs
- 1 package (3 oz.) strawberry flavor gelatin
- 2/3 cup boiling water
- 2 cups ice cubes
- 1 container (8 oz.) frozen whipped topping, thawed
- 1 cup diced strawberries

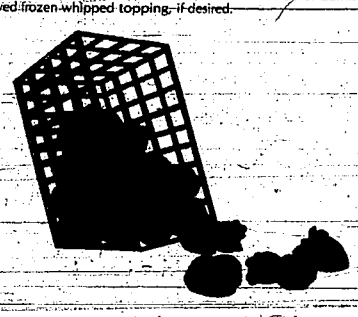
Combine flour, sugar, baking soda, salt, baking powder, butter, melted chocolate, water and vanilla in large mixer bowl. Beat at low speed to blend; then beat 2 minutes at medium speed, scraping bowl frequently. Add eggs; beat 2 minutes longer. Pour into four 9-inch layer pans which have been lined with paper. (Layers will be thin.) Bake at 350° for 20 to 25 minutes, or until cake tester inserted into center comes out clean. Cool in pans about 10 minutes. Remove from pans and finish cooling on racks.

Dissolve gelatin completely in boiling water; stirring about 3 minutes. Add ice cubes and stir constantly until gelatin is thickened, about 2 to 3 minutes. Remove any unmelted ice. Using wire whip, blend in whipped topping, then whip until smooth. Fold in strawberries and chill, if necessary, until mixture will mound. Place 1 cake layer on serving plate; spread with 1-1/4 cups gelatin mixture; top with second layer. Repeat layers. Chill about 1 hour. Garnish with strawberries and mint, if desired. Store any leftover cake in refrigerator.

Strawberry Almond Pie

- 1 package (3 oz.) strawberry flavor gelatin
- 1 package (4-serving size) vanilla flavor pudding and pie filling
- 1-1/4 cups water
- 1-1/2 pints strawberries, hulled and sliced
- 1/2 cup chopped toasted almonds
- 1/4 teaspoon almond extract
- 1 baked 9-inch pie shell, cooled

Combine gelatin and pie filling mix in saucepan. Stir in water. Cook and stir over high heat until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat and stir in strawberries, almonds and extract. Let stand about 5 minutes; then pour into pie shell. Chill until set, about 3 to 4 hours. Garnish with thawed frozen whipped topping, if desired.



Strawberry Tart

- 1 package (3 oz.) strawberry flavor gelatin
- 3/4 cup boiling water
- 1/4 cup cold water
- 2 cups ice cubes
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1 cup thawed frozen whipped topping
- 1 baked 9-inch Shortbread Crust, cooled
- 2 cups fresh strawberries, hulled and halved

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Measure 1/4 cup, add 1/4 cup cold water and set aside. Add ice cubes to remaining gelatin; stir constantly until gelatin begins to thicken, about 3 minutes. Remove any unmelted ice. Using wire whip, blend in sour cream and whipped topping and whip until smooth. Spoon into Shortbread Crust. Arrange strawberries, cut side down, on filling. Chill measured gelatin until slightly thickened; spoon over strawberries. Chill until firm, about 2 hours.

Shortbread Crust

Blend 1/2 cup softened butter or margarine and 1/4 cup sugar together with a pastry blender or fork. Add 1-1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour and mix until crumbs are formed. Then mix thoroughly with hands to form a soft dough. Press evenly onto bottom and sides of 9-inch flan or springform pan. Prick bottom of crust with fork. Bake at 325° for 25 to 30 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool in pan; loosen sides, and remove carefully. If crust sticks, heat gently a few seconds over low heat.

Spring means strawberries

COLOMBUS, Ohio — Spring marks the beginning of the official strawberry season, when strawberry fans abound in a euphoric state.

Afficiados of the red, juicey, fragrant berries savor every bite, whether the fruit is eaten in pie, on shortcake, with cream or out of your hand. Strawberries are one of our few sinfully-delicious desserts that are both low in calories and good for you.

A cup of fresh, unsweetened berries contains only 55 calories and is high in vitamin C. That's a sweet combination for dieters and the health-conscious.

When choosing fresh berries for eating or canning, pick out those that are bright in color, plum and with a fragrant aroma. Strawberries don't ripen in flavor after being picked. They should be stored gently — as little as possible.

Whether fresh or frozen, strawberries can be used in any number of delicious and easy-to-make recipes. When combined with sweet condensed milk, a natural, vaccum cooked mixture of milk and sugar, the results are delectable.

Strawberry Tunnel Cream Cake, for example, rivals strawberry shortcake. Strawberries, sweetened condensed milk, cream cheese and lemon juice form the filling for the center of an angel food cake. Double Strawberry Ripple Ice Cream satisfies any craving for straberry flavor in frozen desserts. It uses both fresh and frozen berries in cool and creamy ice cream made by the easy freezer compartment of the refrigerator.

For company desserts, Strawberry Cheese Flan and Individual Strawberry Triffles are good choices. The first is made in a 9-inch springform pan, with orange rind and juice flavoring the cream cheese and sweetened condensed milk filling mixture, and the rind adds good taste to the easy press-in crust.

For single servings of desserts, the Individual Strawberry Triffles include lady fingers doused in cocktail sherry, topped with a mixture of sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice, strawberries and non dairy whipped topping.

STRAWBERRY TUNNEL CREAM CAKE

1 prepared angel food cake, 10 inches
1 package, 8 oz., softened cream cheese
1 can, 14 oz., Eagle brand sweetened condensed milk, NOT evaporated milk ⅓ cup lemon juice from concentrate
1 teaspoon almond extract
2 cups sliced fresh strawberries
4 cups froze non-dairy whipped topping, thawed or sweetened whipped cream additional fresh strawberries

Cut 1-inch slice crosswise from top of cake; set aside. With sharp knife, cut around cake 1 inch from center hole and 1 inch from outer edge, leaving cake walls 1-inch thick. Remove cake from center, leaving 1-inch thick base on bottom of cake. Reserve cake pieces. In large mixer bowl, beat cheese until fluffy. Beat in sweetened condensed milk until smooth. Stir in lemon and extract; mix well. Stir in reserved torn cake pieces and strawberries. Fill cavity of cake with strawberry mixture; replace top slice of cake. Chill 3 hours or until set. Garnish with whipped topping and additional strawberries if desired. Refrigerate leftovers. (Makes one 10-inch cake.)

DOUBLE STRAWBERRY RIPPLE ICE CREAM

1 paackage, 10 oz., frozen strawberries in syrup, thawed
1 can, 14 oz., Eagle brand sweetened condensed milk, not evaporated milk
2 cups or 1 pint of whipping cream, whipped
1½ cups fresh mashed or pureed strawberries
2 tablespoon light corn syrup

In blender container, blend frozen strawberries until smooth. In large bowl, stir together blended strawberries and sweetened condensed milk. Fold in whipped cream. Pour half of the cream mixture into large mixing bowl or other 2½-quart container; top with half the mashed strawberries. Repeat layering. Swirl knife or spatula through mixture to create ripple effect. Cover; freeze 6 hours or until firm. Let stand at room temperature 10 minutes before serving. Scoop ice cream from pan to serve. Return leftovers to freezer. (Makes about 2 quarts.)

STRAWBERRY CHEESE FLAN

¼ cup margarine or butter
1 cup sifted flour
⅓ cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1 package, 8 oz., softened cream cheese
1 can, 14 oz., Eagle brand sweetened condensed milk, not evaporated milk
2 cups orange juice
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
1 cup chopped fresh strawberries additional sliced fresh strawberries

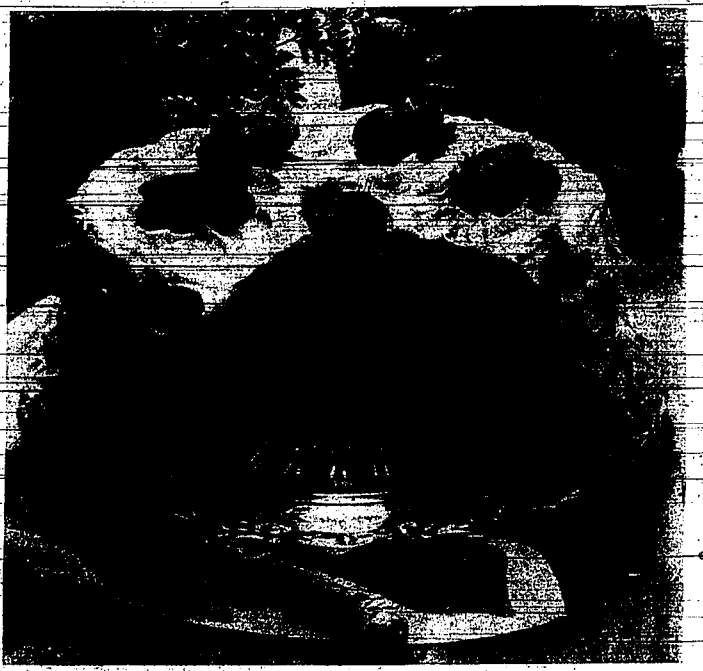
Preheat oven to 350° F. In large saucepan, melt margarine; stir in flour, sugar, egg, rind and vanilla. Mixwell. Pat into bottom and about 1½ inches up side of 9-inch springform pan. Bake 12 to 14 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool. In large mixer bowl, beat cheese until fluffy. Stir in sweetened condensed milk until smooth.

In small saucepan, sprinkle gelatine over orange juice; let stand 1 minute. Over low heat, cook and stir until gelatine dissolves, about 5 minutes. Add to cream cheese mixture; mix well. Stir in strawberries. Pour into prepared pan. Chill 4 hours or until set. Garnish with sliced strawberries. Refrigerate leftovers. (Makes 10 to 12 servings.)

INDIVIDUAL STRAWBERRY TRIFFLES

8 lady fingers, cut into pieces
cocktail sherry
1 can, 14 oz., Eagle brand sweetened condensed milk, not evaporated milk
¼ cup lemon juice from concentrate
1 (4 oz.) container frozen non-dairy whipped topping

In individual serving dishes, place ladyfinger pieces. Sprinkle about ½ teaspoon sherry over each serving; set aside. In medium bowl, combine sweetened condensed milk and lemon juice. Stir in 1 tablespoon sherry and strawberries. Fold in whipped topping. Spoon about ½ cup mixture into each dish. Chill 2 hours or until set. Garnish as desired. Refrigerate leftovers. (Makes 8 servings.)



The fresh strawberries in this Strawberry Tunnel Cream Cake are a bounty of spring

Diet helps nails

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The secret to long, beautiful fingernails may lie in diet, says a UCLA nutrition professor.

A balanced diet containing enough protein, calcium, iron and other nutrients is essential not just to growing, but to maintaining, strong, healthy nails, says Roslyn Alfin-Slater, of the university's School of Public Health.

California wines stir interest

By BARBARA ENSRUD
New York Daily News

NEW YORK — One interesting aspect of the California wine phenomenon of recent years is the curiosity the wines arouse in Europe.

Many Americans find that one of the most welcome gifts they can take to friends abroad is a bottle or two of the wines that Europeans have heard so much about, but had little or no opportunity to taste.

Large premium producers, like Christian Brothers and Paul Masson, have been in foreign markets all over the world for a number of years. But the wines causing excitement now are those from top-line small producers that exhibit intense flavor and individual style.

Geoffrey Roberts, an enterprising London importer, has built up a stable of prestigious California wineries, including Robert Mondavi, Clos du Val, Joseph Phelps, Schramsberg, Chalone and others.

"These wines are in great demand in London restaurants," said Roberts. "We can't get enough of them." It's an interesting development in a country whose wine-drinking traditions were built on the great chateaux and estates of Bordeaux and Burgundy, going back to the last century and earlier.

Capitalizing on this eager interest, California producers are shipping their wines to Europe by the containerful, mainly to England, Germany, France, Belgium and Switzerland, despite foreign trade barriers that make the wines too expensive for any but the most well-heeled connoisseurs. A $10 to $12 bottle of cabernet, for example, sells for 17 pounds in London, or for about $30.

Yet it is English wine connoisseurs who largely are responsible for the enthusiasm. The Zinfandel Club in London, whose members include such wine notables as Harry Waugh, Hugh Johnson and Michael Broadbent, was organized for the express purpose of tasting and collecting California wines. Their writings have intrigued others, and the enthusiasm has begun to broaden its impact.

In London last week a group of specially selected California wines was introduced at a gala black-tie dinner at the Dorchester Hotel. The dinner, a joint venture between New York's Four Seasons restaurant and the Dorchester, presented nine California wines and nine accompanying dishes, modeled somewhat after the Four Seasons' barrel dinner.

About a hundred people attended, paying 95 pounds (about $170) for the pleasure; a number were turned away. Sampling the likes of beef tartare with Schramsberg champagne, and trout and crayfish mousse with Acacia's 1980 chardonay were members of the London press, English wine buffs and various luminaries, including Princess Diana's father, Earl Spencer. Here was the lineup of wines:

Schramsberg Reserve 1975 California Champagne
Robert Mondavi 1980 Fume Blanc
Brander 1981 Sauvignon Blanc, Santa Ynez Valley
Acacia 1980 Chardonnay, Carneros District
Joseph Phelps 1977 Chardonnay, Napa Valley
Calera 1979 Pinot Noir, Reed Vineyard, Hollister
Stag's Leap 1978 Cabernet Sauvignon, Napa Valley
Robert Mondavi 1975 Cabernet Sauvignon Reserve
Joseph Phelps 1980 Late Harvest Riesling.

Honor Mom Sunday with this light dessert

EAST HANOVER, N.J. — Sunday, May 9th, is Mother's Day. And one of the nicest ways to make it a special occasion for her is with a very special dessert — a lovely, light, lucious Almond Peach Torte.

Almond Peach Torte will remind you of the wonderful desserts for which Vienna is famous — those many layered creations lavishly filled with whipped cream. Large pastry circles, made from crushed vanilla wafers and tasting like giant home-made cookies, are layered with peach almond-flavored whipped cream. Wreath the top with additional whipped cream and golden peach slices and you have a new classic for Mother.

This great-looking dessert spectacular is perfect, not only for Mother's Day, but for all kinds of entertaining. It's made ahead (and so very, very easy to do) and waits in the refrigerator until serving time. It's versatile, too, and can be put together with just about any fresh fruit in season or canned fruits — berries, bananas, apples, pears, nectarines, apricot, pineapple, et al.

So, say "Happy Mother's Day" with this picture-perfect palate-pleasing Almond Peach Torte. It's a special dessert for a special person on this warm and joyful occasion.

Consumer Tip: The circles of pastry can be made ahead and frozen. Cool completely, then layer between sheets of waxed paper and wrap loosely in foil. Individual pastry circles will defrost in about one hour at room temperature.

ALMOND PEACH TORTE

Pastry:
70 vanilla wafers, finely rolled, about 2½ cups crumbs
½ cup margarine, softened
½ cup cold water

Filling:
2 cups heavy cream
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
¼ teaspoon almond extract
3 large ripe peaches, peeled or slides or
1 can, 16 oz., sliced in half lengthwise
1-2 tablespoons lemon juice

1. Preheat oven to 375° F. Cut 3 (8-inch) waxed-paper circles; put on large cookies sheet.
2. Make pastry: In medium bowl, using pastry blender or two knives held scisors fashion, blend wafer crumbs and margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Using fork, gradually stir in water until dough is moist enough to hold together.
3. Divide dough into thirds; press each third evenly onto 8-inch waxed-paper circle. Bake 12 to 15 minutes. Cool 15 minutes, or until pastry rounds on waxed paper are firm enough to remove to wire rack; cool completely.
4. Make filling: In medium bowl, combine heavy cream, sugar and almond extract. Beat until stiff peaks form; set aside.
5. Reserve 8 peach slices for garnish; if using fresh peaches, dip in lemon juice. Coarsely chop remaining peaches; using rubber spatula, fold into whipped cream.
6. Remove waxed paper from bottom of pastry rounds; place one pastry round on serving plate; top with one-third whipped cream mixture; repeat layers twice. Garnish with reserved peach slice. Refrigerate 4 to 6 hours. Makes 8 servings.

California crop good

By MARY PHILLIPS
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Despite the soggy winter in California, the 1982 strawberry crop is as luscious as ever.

After a recent visit to the strawberry growing area in Southern California — Santa Maria, Ventura, Orange and San Diego counties — David Rifgs, advertising director of the California Strawberry Advisory Board, said, "The fruit looked good and there was lots of it."

The Tufts and Douglas strawberries are the most popular varieties from Southern California; Aiko and the Driscoll thrive in the Watsonville-Salinas area, farther north.

Nine hundred California growers produce 75 percent of the nation's strawberry crop on 11,200 acres. This giant strawberry patch stretches from Orange County to Santa Cruz County.

"The 1981 California strawberry crop — fresh and frozen — was worth $220 million," says Riggs.

"Last year was a very good year. We had outstanding quality all year, and there was greater value for the consumer. If the yield is down, we should have about the same this year."

So there are plenty of strawberries this year for homemade ice cream, for blending into a daiquiri, or for eating fresh.

Strawberries are good for you, too. One cup contains 60 calories and more than a day's supply of vitamin C (the RDA is 60 milligrams; the berries provide 88). Strawberries are low in sodium and they provide 8 percent of the daily iron requirement and 2 percent of the vitamin A requirement.

Here are some hints for selecting and storing the berries:

• Shop for fully ripened, bright red strawberries. They do not ripen after being picked.

• Choose berries that are plump and well-rounded, with a natural shine, rich red color and bright green, fresh-looking caps.

• Use strawberries as soon after purchase as possible to ensure the best flavor and the highest nutritional value.

• Remove berries from their containers and arrange them in a single layer on a cookie sheet or other shallow container for refrigeration. Cool temperatures keep the berries fresh and bright for several days.

• Never wash strawberries or remove caps until just before using. Washing removes the natural protective outer layer. The caps protect the strawberries and help preserve flavor and texture.

• After washing berries, remove caps if recipe directs, trying not to remove any of the berry. Give the cap a gentle twist or use the point of a sharp knife.

• Pat strawberries dry with paper towels before serving.

The simplest way to serve the fresh berries is with thick cream. Or a shortcake can be put together quickly with slices of purchased pound cake, topped with juicy berries slightly sweetened with sugar and crowned with billowy whipped cream.

STRAWBERRY DAIQUIRI

For each drink whirl in the blender:
5 strawberries
1 tablespoon lime juice
1 teaspoon sugar
Jigger of light rum
½ cup crushed ice

Garnish with a plump, whole berry. Serve in stemmed goblets for extra good looks.

STRAWBERRY MARGARITA

1½ ounces tequila
½ ounce curacao
1½ teaspoons lime juice
2 teaspoons triple sec
2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup sliced strawberries
5 ice cubes

Combine tequila, curacao, lime juice, triple sec, sugar, strawberries and ice cubes in blender jar. Blend at high speed until slightly frothy. Pour into salt-rimmed chilled margarita glasses. Makes 1 to 2 servings.

BUBBLING STRAWBERRY LEMONADE

1 basket of strawberries
1 (6-ounce) can frozen pink lemonade concentrate

Puree strawberries and frozen lemonade concentrate. Fill frosty glass with ice cubes. Add puree. Top off with champagne or soda water. Makes 4 drinks.

STRAWBERRIES ROMANOFF

Marinate 2 baskets of whole strawberries in one-third cup of orange-flavored liqueur for about an hour. Puree half of them. Whip 1 cup whipping cream with one-third cup sugar; fold in puree. Spoon over whole berries. Serves 6.

CHOCOLATE-DIPPED STRAWBERRIES

For each basket of berries melt 6 ounces of semisweet chocolate pieces slowly over hot water. Dip washed and dried whole berries in chocolate, place on waxed paper; refrigerate to harden. For imbibed berries: Before dipping, use a cook's hypodermic needle to inject each berry with orange-flavored liqueur.

TRES CHIC SOUR CREAM BRULEE

Beat 1 (8-ounce(package of cream cheese until fluffy. Fold into one cup sour cream. Arrange 2 baskets of washed and stemmed berries upright in a shallow baking pan. Spoon sour cream mixture on top. Cover generously with brown sugar. Broil on lowest rack until sugar melts, then chill. Serves 6.

FRESH STRAWBERRY FRITTERS

Combine 1 cup buttermilk pancake mix with twi-thirds cup water and let stand 10 minutes. Dip 2 baskets washed and dried berries in batter, to coat all but stem. Fry in hot oil (400 degrees) until golden (about 30 seconds). Drain on paper towels and dust with powdered sugar. Makes 6 servings.

STRAWBERRY SAUCE

1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup boiling water
2 tablespoons fresh lime juice
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon grated lime rind
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 pint fresh strawberries
Vanilla ice cream

Combine cornrtarch, sugar and salt in small saucepan; mix in boiling water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture thickens and boils. Stir in lime and lemon juices and rinds; simmer 1 minute longer. Cool thoroughly. Wash and hull strawberries; stir into cooled mixture. Serve over vanilla ice cream. Makes about 2½ cups sauce.

STRAWBERRY DIP

1 (8-ounce) package cream cheese
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Light cream
Fresh strawberries with stems

Mix cream cheese and lemon rind. Add enough light cream to soften. Beat until smooth and fluffy. Place bowl of cheese mixture in center of serving tray. Surround bowl with berries. Pass to guests letting each dip berry into cheese.

STRAWBERRY YOGURT ICE CREAM

1 pint basket fresh strawberries, stemmed
2 eggs
½ cup orange marmalade
½ cup light corn syrup
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1½ cups whipping cream
1 cup unflavored yogurt

In container of electric blender combine berries, eggs, marmalade, corn syrup and lemon juice. Blend until almost smooth. Pour into bowl. Whisk in cream and yogurt to blend thoroughly. Pour into cannister of ice cream maker and freeze according to manufacturer's directions. Or pour strawberry mixture into shallow bowl and place in freezer.

When frozen about 1 inch around edge, break up and beat with electric mixer until smooth. Freeze again until frozen 1 inch around edge and beat until smooth. Cover and place in freezer several hours until firm. Allow to stand at room temperature about 10 minutes before serving. Makes about 1½ quarts.

Lowly carrot peels, usually discarded, can be easily turned into cookies, pies or cakes

Willetta Warberg

Times-News correspondent

Don't laugh! There's lots of money and nourishments being thrown into the garbage. For instance, carrot peel can be saved and easily turned into cookies or cake. We'll show you how we use these nutritious peels to spread your dollar.

But, first a few tips. Don't wash your carrots for peeling until you're ready to use them. And when you do get ready, prior to paring, rinse and scrub them thoroughly to remove any soil.

If you don't use the parings immediately, blanch or scald them for no more than 2 minutes. To do so, hold small amounts of peel in a sieve in or over boiling water.

Put bits and pieces of parings into airtight container and freeze until you've collected enough to make a recipe.

CARROT PEEL SPICE COOKIES

1 cup unsifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon allspice
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
⅛ teaspoon ground cloves
½ cup softened butter or margarine
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1 cup chopped carrot peel
¾ cup uncooked quick oats
1 package, 6 oz., butterscotch morsels
½ teaspoon chocolate extract

Preheat oven to 375° F. In mixing bowl combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, ginger, mace, allspice, pepper and cloves. Using electric mixer, blend in butter or margarine, sugar, egg, carrot peel and oats. Stir in butterscotch morsels and chocolate extract. Drop by scant teaspoonsfuls on lightly greased cooky sheet. Bake 10 to 12 minutes or until baking cookies puff and sudenly flatten. Remove from oven; let cool slightly and remove with spatula to waxed paper to cool completely. (Makes 48.)

HONEY CARROT PEEL CAKE

3 cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup vegetable oil
1½ cups cups honey
4 eggs
3 cups chopped carrot peel
1 cup chopped nuts

Preheat oven to 325° F. Grease and flour 1 layer cake pans. Into mixing bowl, sift together flour, soda, salt and cinnamon. Stir in vegetable oil, honey and eggs; mix thoroughly. Fold in carrots and nuts. Pour into layer pans. Bake 30 to 35 minutes, or until cake tests done. Cool and frost with favorite frosting.

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS: Citrus season is coming in to a close. You'll be able to tell because the oranges and grapefruits are starting to dry up. Select your citrus buys carefully. Lift the fruit and pick the heaviest. Wholesale prices for pork and beef are up. If they stay this way too long, cost will raise for these two meats. Strawberries make sweet buys now. Lettuce will probably stay right where it is now pricewise.

DUTCH MEAT LOAF

1½ pounds ground beef
1 cup bread crumbs
1 medium onion, chopped
½ can tomato sauce
1 egg, beaten
1½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Mix all together and form into a loaf. Bake at 350° F.

Combine ½ can tomato sauce, 2 tablespoon vinegar, 1 cup water, 2 tablespoon brown sugar and 2 tablespoon prepared mustard.

Mix together and pour over loaf in oven. Baste once in a while. Bake 1¼ hours. Serve with potatoes or noodles.

Strawberries and yogurt team up for a rich-tasting pie which is easy to prepare

Fruit, yogurt tasty pair

MINNEAPOLIS — Fruit and yogurt are a tasty pair. And one of the most popular new culinary trends combines the two in a delicious refrigerated pie.

This Strawberry 'n Yogurt Pie is a delicious way to take advantage of season-fresh berries. The rich, creamy filling is dotted with bright, red berries.

This tasty filling is spooned into a quick-and-easy shell made with biscuit mix. A real time-saver, the baking mix crust recipe eliminates the step of cutting shortening into the ingredients. Just mix the ingredients and pat into the pie plate. That also eliminates the mess of rolling out a crust. Decorate this rich pie with dollops of whipped cream and some whole fresh berries for a refreshing looking and tasting dessert.

STRAWBERRY 'N YOGURT PIE

1 cup biscuit mix
¼ cup margarine or butter, softened
2 tablespoon boiling water
16-18 ounces strawberry yogurt, about 2 cups
1 cup sliced strawberries
1 carton, 8 oz., frozen whipped topping, thawed

Heat oven to 400° F. Mix baking mix and margarine in small bowl. Add boiling water; stir vigorously until very soft dough forms. Press dough firmly with floured hands in pie plate, 9x1¼ inches, bringing dough onto rim of plate. Flute if desired. Bake until light brown, 8 to 10 minutes, cool completely.

Fold yogurt and strawberries into whipped topping. Spoon into pie shell. Cover and refrigerate at least 12 hours.

Crepe dessert recipe pleases

By LINDA CICERO
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Q. You have done such an excellent job getting recipes for others that I thought you could help me. My husband and I recently visited Disney World and had lunch in Cinderella's Castle. For dessert, they served the best crepes I've ever tasted. I particularly enjoyed the Sherwood Forest crepes made with creme de menthe. Do you think you would be able to obtain the recipe for me? My husband would be so surprised. — P.H.

A. Serve these, and you're sure to have your husband sipping from your glass slipper. From Sharon Carlsen, manager of Cinderella's Castle, comes:

CREPES SHERWOOD

Batter:
3 eggs
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1¼ cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup all-purpose flour
2 tablespoons cocoa powder, sifted
2 tablespoons melted butter

If using electric mixer or whisk: Beat eggs in medium mixing bowl. Add flour, sugar, cocoa and salt alternately with milk, beating with mixer or whisk until smooth. Beat in melted butter.

If using blender: Combine ingredients and blend for about one minute. Scrape down sides with rubber spatula and blend for another 15 seconds, or until smooth.

Refrigerate batter for about one hour. Cook on upside-down crepe griddle or traditional frying pan. Makes about 20 crepes.

Crepe Filling:

12 ounces milk
10 ounces granulated sugar
1½ ounces creme de menthe
1 quart heavy cream
¼ ounce green food coloring
1 ounce mint flavoring
¼ ounce salt
¾ ounce plain gelatin
4 ounces hot water
5 ounces shaved chocolate

Put milk, sugar, creme de menthe, heavy cream, green coloring, mint flavoring and salt in mixing bowl. Using wire whisk, whip until mixture starts to thicken. Then dissolve gelatin in hot water and add slowly, whipping until stiff. Fold in shaved chocolate, refrigerate to chill. Using pastry bag, tube filling over middle of crepe and fold crepe ends to center. Top with whipped cream and chocolate shavings if desired.

Q. I have had dessert souffles in a couple of restaurants, and they have served a sauce along with portions of souffle. I have looked in my cookbooks for a recipe for the sauce without any success. Can you help? — L.K.

A. A souffle is spectacular enough that it really doesn't need a sauce.

Ads should be guaranteed

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN — I was stunned to read your recent column about the two women who went into A&P supermarkets searching for mispriced items. What gave them the right to load into their grocery carts as much of this merchandise as they cared to?

I don't blame the employees for refusing to bag this duo's accumulated loot. In my judgment they were stealing.

What I can't understand is how you can suggest that the store manager should permit this to occur and that he should do so with "courtesy." — F.M. from Hastings, Neb.

DEAR F.M. — Vicki Bamer and Nancy Noren didn't just search out mispriced items without an invitation. The A&P stores in their area went to great expense to advertise their correct-price guarantee.

This guarantee invited all shoppers to come into the stores to see how accurate their prices were. Unfortunately for A&P, some of those prices weren't so accurate. That's why the duo received the mispriced items free.

Rather than shed tears for A&P, I would rather thank these two brave women for bringing the mispricing problems to the stores' attention in a very dramatic manner.

You might have thanked them, too, if you knew that the items you purchased were marked with a greater accuracy as a result of their efforts.

Supermarkets that advertise low-price guarantees or correct-price guarantees should be prepared to stand behind them in both letter and spirit, and to do so with great courtesy. I have said this before, and it is likely that I will have to say it again.

DEAR MARTIN — You asked about shopping with a spouse.

No way! Never! I'd rather starve!

My husband's goal upon entering the supermarket is to get out as quickly as possible. His time is worth money, so he is going to be quick and efficient.

This means grabbing what's on top — no comparing prices, no investigating new products and no using coupons.

But the supermarket fairy gets even. My husband always picks the line where the cash register malfunctions just as he gets to it. At this point I wait in the car.

I hate to see a grown man cry! — Nesterella in Nyack, N.Y.

DEAR NESTRELLA — Going to the supermarket isn't much fun when you are shopping with Gen. Patton.

But, in answer to my request for comments about shopping with a spouse, I also received some letters from shoppers who said that they enjoyed it. I'll tell you more about them in my next column.

Togetherness in shopping draws praise

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

Can couples really find happiness together in the supermarket aisles?

Some readers say, "No!" But others have written glowing letters of their experiences.

Barbara Vitello of Ozone Park, N.Y., writes: "My husband enjoys food shopping. Since I do too, we shop together. He gets an opportunity to help me plan our meals and he believes that food shopping makes him a better consumer.

"He is now aware of how prices can change from one week to the next. He has also gotten into the habit of giving me a total before we reach the checkout counter. He is very helpful, and I'm glad he escorts me down the aisles."

"I have been shopping with my husband for 35 years," says Lois Colton of Adrian, Mich. "I make out the grocery list for the necessities. If there is any money left over, he buys some of the food I consider luxuries, like special cheeses. Pushing that shopping cart together has helped us pull together these many years."

Amanda from Philadelphia isn't married yet, but she is learning how it feels to walk down the aisle.

"My boyfriend is often invited over to my house for dinner," she says. "One evening when I had to do the shopping, he came along. Was I ever surprised to see him checking labels, comparison shopping and looking for coupons and refund forms on packages.

Strawberry Chambord in Pastry Parchment has flaky filo pastry filled with red strawberries

Chef's creed was simplicity

SAN FRANCISCO — "Tasteful simplicity" was the creed of one of the world's most respected culinary artists, Georges Auguste Escoffier.

Born in France in the mid 1800's, an age when meals were a creation in ceremony and celebration, this master chef revolutionized the art of entertaining.

Entertaining continues to be influenced by Escoffier's creed of simple elegance. But fortunately, you don't have to be a master French chef like Escoffier to create impressive delicacies that delight your guests.

Part of the secret is in using the very best ingredients. For example, when it came to desserts, Escoffier often favored using fine liqueurs because of their rich flavor and color.

One exquisite liqueur for creating elegant desserts is Chambord, a black raspberry cordial that's fruity, sweet and a stunning ruby-red in color. It takes 10 baskets of tiny black raspberries grown in the Burgandy region of France to make just one bottle of Chambord. So, it's no wonder this liqueur is so delicious.

For a fancier dessert, try this delicious recipe for Strawberry Chambord in Pastry Parchment. Warm flaky filo pastry is filled with luscious ripe red strawberries and topped with a dollop of whipped cream. It rests on a beautiful Chambord-laced raspberry sauce.

Strawberry Chambord in Pastry Parchment is a dessert with a taste of grand luxury that holds to the theme of simple elegance. Served with expresso or other specialty coffee, it is guaranteed to be the memorable highlight of your special get-together.

STRAWBERRIES IN PASTRY PARCHMENT

3 filio pastry sheets (about 12x15-inches each)
½ cup sugar
½ cup unseasoned bread crumbs
6 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1 pint basket strawberries, stemmed sweetened whipped cream
Chambord Raspberry Sauce (recipe follows)

On board, stack the pastry sheets and with a sharp knife cut into halves to make six sheets about 7½x12-inches each.

Stack and cover with plastic wrap and damp towel. In small bowl combine sugar and bread crumbs. Working quickly with one piece of pastry at a time, lay a pastry piece on board and brush with about 1½ teaspoons of butter and sprinkle with about 2 teaspoons of the sugar mixture.

Place a row of strawberries (4 or 5) about 2 inches above long edge of pastry centering row to leave ends of pastry uncovered. From long edge, carefully roll up and tuck ends of pastry under. Place seam side down on ungreased baking sheet. Brush lightly with butter and sprinkle with sugar mixture. Repeat to make six pastries. Cover closely with plastic; and chill 2 to 8 hours. To bake, preheat oven to 500° F. Remove plastic wrap from pastries and bake in center of oven about 5 minutes until crisp and browned, watching carefully.

To serve, spoon Chambord Sauce, equally divided, onto individual plates. Place a hot pastry on each. Dollop with whipped cream. Serve immediately.

CHAMBORD RASBERRY SAUCE

Thaw one 10-oz. package frozen rasberries in syrup. Drain thoroughly over 1-quart saucepan and reserve raspberries. Stir ½ cup Chambord into raspberry liquid. Bring just to boiling. Mix 1 tablespoon lemon juice with 2½ teaspoons cornstarch. Stir into Chambord mixture. Cook and stir over low heat until slightly thickened, about 2 minutes. Cool to room temperature and stir in reserved raspberries before serving. (Sauce may be covered and refrigerated up to 5 days. Bring to room temperature before serving.) Makes about 1½ cups.

She's fed up with dieting

By CAROL KLEIMAN
Chicago Tribune

As my middle age spreads, I increasingly am fed up with diets.

In the "olden days" — which is how my children describe the dim past of my childhood — when I could live on a steady diet of pizza and never add to my crust, I was bored when friends kindly told me every detail of their efforts to lose weight, down to the last ounce.

Later, when everything I ate began to stick to me noticeably, adorning waist, hips and thighs with equal devotion, I began to be openly hostile when skinny, happy people reported their enormous efforts to get down to a socially acceptable starvation weight.

To this day, I avoid people who are beaming with robust good health. There is something offensive about them, as if skinniness is next to Godliness. Frankly, I also believe these perfectly fit people who give me fits are dangerous; There's an old theory that matter is neither created nor destroyed. And it doesn't take a person who fits the insurance charts perfectly in height and weight to figure out if all these folks are losing weight, someone must be gaining it.

That someone is me.

Of course, I recommend health spas to all my friends. That's because they are such wonderful places for rest and rehabilitation and camaraderie, all of which are important when you have to handle the fact that after you return home you will more than likely gain all that old weight back.

Every morning, I, too, play my exercise tape loudly. Sometimes, I even exercise. Though many folks go to exercise class, I have found that doesn't work for me: Climbing the steps to the classes wears me out for the day.

My heavy doubts about the virtues of dieting are clearly out of step with the times, when with it people are without extra weight. I don't mean to be a joy killer, but I do think it important that women who are on diets — and there are far more women dieting than men — should know that most diets are geared to men's metabolism and rate of gaining and losing weight.

Fireplaces lead home book sales

NEW YORK (UPI) — One-third of all how-to books to reach consumers this year will be sold through home centers and other building materials outlets, says Bruce King, national account manager for a major publisher of such volumes.

A report in National Home Center News, a bi-weekly trade publication, quotes King as saying many titles will well more than 150,000 copies each this year.

"The more basic the subject matter, the better the seller," he adds. The best seller to date is on fireplaces, one leading how-to publisher told the News. It has sold 1.485 million copies since publication in 1972.

The closest runners-up are a book on kitchens, with total sales of 1.370 million since 1973, and patios and decks, 1.240 million since 1976.

Two sides battle on additives

BY JUDY FOREMAN
Boston Globe

Step right up, ladies and gentlemen. Getcha front-row seats. In the center ring, the Hatfields and the McCoys of the food biz are at it again.

And we guarantee, this fight will make "Animal House" look like a tea party.

In one corner is the lady from Harvard who allegedly loves additives, caffeine, sugar, saccharin, publicity and monied captains of the food industry, who apparently love her back.

In the other is the gentleman from MIT who thinks the lady from Harvard and her sidekicks are on the take and that the additives and their chemical cousins she loves so well are poisoning the masses.

In the middle is the battered consumer who, when this round is over, will be left, as usual, unable to tell a nitrite from a nitrate, or a carcinogen from a cookie.

Recently Michael Jacobson went public with his book-length blast at Elizabeth Whelan, entitled "Voodoo Science—Twisted Consumerism."

Jacobson is a microbiologist trained at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the founder of a 10-year-old, 33,000-member Ralph Nader spinoff group, the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

Whelan, an epidemiologist with a doctor of science degree from Harvard's School of Public Health, founded the American Council of Science and Health three years ago with Harvard-based Dr. Frederick Stare. The council now has 90 physicians and scientists on its board.

In a news release on "Voodoo Science," Jacobson asks: "Is there any reason to be suspicious of a self-styled 'consumer health group' which defends the sale of candy and soda pop in school cafeterias, exonerates the pesticide 2,4,5-T, denies the relationship between fatty foods and heart disease, and recommends the relaxation of clean air laws? Yes."

In a telephone interview, Jacobson said: "We have been working on food additives for many years. And a few years ago, this other organization, the Whelan group, began popping up in the news, consistently defending the food and chemical industry.

"After seeing them defend the pesticide 2,4,5-T, high-fat diets, caffeine ... we have always had such a ringing defense of food and chemical industries — we decided to take a good close look at them. And, not to our surprise, (we found) ... according to their 1981 annual report, that there is a tremendous number of companies who have a commercial interest in the products they (Whelan's group) analyze.

In other words, as Jacobson puts it, "They are the major front for industry in the food area."

In response, Whelan (in a telephone interview) called Jacobson's book "a piece of scientific junk food, laden with sugar-coated rhetoric and (having) the undertaste of sour grapes.

"Naderites do not have a patent on the word 'consumer advocate.' We're threatening them. They're scared out of their minds by us. We're getting more attention. I'm sick and tired of this Nader charges that we're kooks."

Wherein lies the truth?

Edward Groth, a PhD biologist trained at Stanford University and now on the staff of Consumers Union, publisher of Consumer Reports, was one of eight scientists asked by the Jacobson group to review some of ACSH's scientific reports.

Groth, who insists that he speaks as a single scientist and not as a spokesman for Consumers Union, studied ACSH's work on caffeine. He says, "My primary criticism is that it (ACSH's work) was pretty good as a scientific review article, but that its policy statement bears little connection to its scientific review.

"I think some of the people involved in ACSH are good scientists. But they all share a world view which is reactionary. They think environmentalists are overreacting to small problems. And they believe it is their purpose in life to set those kooks right, to straighten out the facts so the public won't be worried. As irresponsible nuts. They (ACSH) are mostly zealots, so it's an emotional crusade."

A spokeswoman for a prominent national nutritionist concurs. Many nutritionists, she said, are caught "between the two paranoias" of Whelan's group, which has a "reputable board of directors" and Jacobson's, which "is a little apt to get dramatic the other way, though some of their crusades are very reasonable."

It is too soon to tell who the winner will be.

But the loser? That's easy. It's that poor guy in the middle of the ring getting it from both sides.

LEE LEE

Boisean wins Gem cookoff

BOISE — Lee Lee of Boise was chosen Idaho's best beef cook in the 1982 Idaho Beef Cook-Off contest held recently in Caldwell.

Mrs. Lee prepared her favorite company dish, "English Sweet and Sour Short Ribs" to win a freezer filled with beef and a trip as Idaho's representative to the national beef cook-off in San Antonio in September.

Judy Larsen of Boise was second place winner and Vicki Brister of Payette was thrid place winner. Larsen and Brister received cut and wrapped beef.

Lee developed her prize-winning recipe when she decided to try a sweet and sour sauce on the English cut short ribs she was fond of.

"The English cut is very lean and meaty," she explained, "so this dish is great for a sauce and perfect for company. It's always been a hit."

The ninth annual Idaho Beef Cook-Off was sponsored by the Idaho CowBelles in cooperation with the Idaho Beef Council to encourage the use of the less tender cuts of beef.

For more information about the 1983 contest or a free recipe booklet of the top ten 1983 contest winners write, The Idaho Beef Council, 2120 Airport Way, Boise, ID 83705.

ENGLISH SWEET AND SOUR SHORT RIBS

- 3 pounds beef short ribs, lean and meaty, seasoned with salt and pepper to taste.
- 1½ cups flour
- 2 cups sliced onion
- 1½ cups hot water
- 2 cloves garlic
- 2 large bay leaves
- ½ cup catsup
- ¼ cup wine vinegar
- 8 heaping tablespoons raw brown or old fashioned dark brown sugar

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Mix seasoned salt and pepper with flour. Roll short ribs in flour mixture. In Dutch oven, brown beef in oil on all sides.

Remove meat from pan. Add onions to oil in pan and brown until golden brown. Mix remaining ingredients together. Place ribs on top of onions and pour mixture of ingredients over ribs. Cover and bake for 2½ hours. (Makes 5 medium servings.)

Meat prices will increase

WASHINGTON — Retail prices for all meats will rise through the summer, the Agriculture Department says, because of a decline in livestock output that permits producers to make sustainable profits for the first time in three years.

The biggest gainers will be pork prices, which will continue to climb throughout the year. Pork prices are expected to be 10 percent to 12 percent higher than a 1981 average of $1.52 a pound, the department said Monday.

But by late summer, beef and chicken prices should stabilize as supplies increase, economists said in a summary of a livestock and meat outlook and situation report. Beef an chicken prices should rise 3 percent to 4 percent for the year compared to last year, the report said.

So far, prices of meats in supermarkets have not risen as sharply as prices to farmers, which means the difference between farm prices and consumer prices has narrowed. Retail prices tend to lag behind those for live animals.

The department said, however, that "higher prices and marketing charges will likely be passed on to consumers in coming months."

By late April, hog prices to farmers had risen 25 percent since the beginning of the year and prices of Choice fed steers had risen more than 15 percent.

Economists said the increase resulted from a decline in supplies, which was caused by producer attempts to cut losses.

"Livestock producers are showing the first sustainable feeding margins since mid-1979," the department said.

Total red meat and poultry production in the first quarter of 1982 fell 3 percent from a year earlier. For the rest of the year, output is expected to be 4 percent to 5 percent lower than a year earlier.

When times get tough more people start eating rabbit

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor

When economic times get tough or meat is in short supply, people start eating more rabbit.

In the past 12 months, membership in the American Rabbit Breeders Association has increased 25 percent.

"We attribute a great deal of the growth to people raising a few rabbits in their back yards to put more meat on the table," says Ed Peifer, the association's executive director.

"During every war, rabbit raising increased greatly in the United States," he added in a telephone interview from association headquarters in Bloomington, Ill.

"Three does and one buck can produce enough meat in one year to supply all the protein needed by a family of four," Peifer said.

When a feed company surveyed rabbit breeders about two years ago, he added, "Less than 1 percent knew about the association or belonged to it," although the group is 72 years old.

Rabbit breeding in the United States is largely for show, Peifer said.

Commercial breeders are estimated at only about 10,000 — a figure that does not include thousands of backyard breeders who sell a few rabbits on an irregular basis.

"Eighty-five percent of our members are show people who raise rabbits as a hobby," Peifer said. "We put on some 1,400 shows a year."

About 34,200 of the association's 35,000 members are American, he said. The other 800 are scattered through practically every other country in the world.

"Only about one animal out of 10 is show quality," he added. The rest are either kept as pets, eaten by the breeder's household, sold as meat or sold to commercial laboratories for scientific use.

"We can only guess at how many rabbits are being raised," Peifer said.

One observer, Lee Schwanz, says Americans ate more than 25 million pounds of rabbit meat in 1980 — which adds up to less than half an ounce per capita per year, well behind Italy's 5.1 pounds, and France's 3.5 pounds per capita. Schwanz is the author of "Rabbits for Food and Profit."

Jeri Vitiello, who works for a feed manufacturer, says requests for the company's two free home rabbitry booklets are increasing tremendously. The publications are available from local Ralston Purina feed dealers, listed in telephone directory Yellow Pages under Feed.

Miss Vitiello, director of the New York City-based Rabbit News Bureau, the consumer information service of a St. Louis-based feed manufacturer, says you can grow about 200 pounds of rabbit a year in a backyard space about the size of a queen-sized mattress.

Even in Nebraska, which has few breeders compared with the East and West Coasts, the number of 4-H rabbit projects is growing by leaps and bounds — says Dan Bigbee, an extension poultry specialist at the University of Nebraska, in Lincoln. Their numbers increased from 767 in 1979 to 1,062 last year, Bigbee adds.

But he urges caution on anyone contemplating rabbit breeding as a commercial venture.

Price and supply competition from imports are stiff, demand is small compared with other meat sources and marketing problems can be difficult, he says.

Both Bigbee and Peifer said most rabbit consumption in the United States is on the coasts, whose populations include many people of European heritage whose native cuisines feature rabbit.

Bigbee's advice to people who want to try raising rabbits:

Ask commercial breeders or show people, university poultry specialists and extension agents for recommendations. The specialists and extension agents are especially good sources advice about backyard operations and youth projects, Bigbee says.

He said he thinks economic conditions to improve in a year and Americans will finally accept rabbit as meat, while rabbit raising continues to increase slowly.

Dear Abby

Man says he's happier in new, 'womanly' body

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman signed "Nervous in Northridge" caught my eye. She said she had a baby boy who was so beautiful that strangers used to stop her on the street and say, "That child is much too beautiful to be a BOY, he should have been a GIRL!"

As a baby boy I was never particularly beautiful, but dating back to my earliest recollections, I always felt that I should have been a girl.

As I matured, those feelings became so strong and painful that I often considered suicide rather than living the rest of my life in the "wrong" sex.

When I was 31, I wrote to you about my problem and you recommended a Dr. Paul Walker, who practiced gender-identification therapy in San Francisco.

I went to see him, and after several months, he confirmed that I was a bona fide transsexual. I decided to do whatever was necessary to become a woman physically. Dr. Walker explained what it entailed, and he guided me through the necessary stages.

The transition hasn't been easy, but it saved my life, and now I have a body that matches my mind and emotions. Best of all, I no longer have to pray to be a woman — I am one.

— FROM HARRY TO HARRIETTE

DEAR ABBY: Last week I received an engraved invitation to my niece's wedding. Enclosed was a mimeographed letter. When I read it I couldn't believe my eyes. It said: "Gift suggestions: Because the bride and groom have everything they need, an ideal gift would be something that can be put into a pocket or purse." (I later learned that this letter was included in all the invitations — not only to family members.)

Abby, the bride's family is extremely wealthy, but even if they were in modest circumstances, is it proper to send a "gift suggestion" along with an invitation?

I believe that a gift is just that — a gift — and I prefer to select a gift myself, but now I feel that I no longer have that option. How should I respond?

— NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Ignore the "suggestion," and select your own gift. It is never proper to "suggest" a gift, unless, of course, the giver asks for suggestions.

DEAR ABBY: Mother's Day will soon be here, and I wish you would say something in your column to remind "young marrieds" to remember their mothers-in-law, too — even if it's only a card or a note. There were so many years when I should have remembered my mother-in-law, but I was too "busy."

This year I will send her a spray of flowers — to the cemetery — bitterly regretting that I failed to send her flowers while she was living. I should have appreciated her more, written her more about her grandchildren, whom she loved so much, and most of all I should have let her know how much I had grown to love her.

I hope others will not make the same mistake I made, because next year may be too late.

— TEARS ON MY PILLOW

CONFIDENTIAL TO WAITING FOR JUSTICE AND FREEDOM IN KENTUCKY: The 22-year-old male in jail, facing the death penalty for murder: Yes, I do want to hear from you. Please write.

Abby's sister Landers 'recycled' old letters

CHICAGO (UPI) — Ann Landers says she saw nothing wrong with recycling old letters in her worldwide advice column, but now that a small town publisher objects she'll stop the practice.

Barbara Sancken, a reporter for the Pontiac (Ill.) Daily Leader, was compiling the paper's "Remember" column — a daily digest of newspaper excerpts from years past — when she found letters dating back to 1966 that seemed very familiar.

Over a period of several months, she came up with more than 30 letters from 1966 and 1967 that ran again in 1981 and 1982.

She showed the rerun letters to James Pearre, the newspaper's publisher, who called Miss Landers on Monday.

Pearre said the columnist admitted the letters were old material, but told him she believed the letters "sharply illustrated certain points of continuing concern to today's readers."

Miss Landers told Pearre she saw "no harm in presenting the old material as new ... and she didn't think the readers would care," he said.

But Pearre said he objected to old letters and advice being recycled and the doyen of problem-solvers devised an immediate solution — she promised to stop the reruns.

Landers is the twin sister of Abigail Van Buren ("Dear Abby"), whose columns appear daily in The Times-News.

In a statement released Monday from her office in Hawthorne, Calif., Van Buren said, "An has always been proper, ethical and honest, and I'm sure there was no intentional deception."

Asked if she has ever recycled material, Van Buren said any reruns are "clearly labeled as such."

Pearre said Miss Landers' ready agreement to stop the duplications impressed him, and added that the Leader will continue to run her column, as it has for 24 years.

ANN LANDERS
No harm in using old letters

Miss Landers said later in a written statement that she reused old letters occasionally, but added, "It had not occurred to me that this would be considered deceptive.

"The letters are relevant and it's the quality of the answer that counts," she said.

"Now that I find there is disapproval from one publisher, I will discontinue this immediately," she promised.

She said she came across the old letters while doing research for a daily letter and advice feature she puts together for Illinois Bell Telephone's "Dial-It" service.

She added: "My credibility is all I have and I would never knowingly do anything to damage it."

Her column appears in about 1,000 newspapers around the world and is read by some 70 million people daily.

Dr. Lamb

Father's cancer death taught son to quit smoking

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Association

DEAR DR. LAMB — I know what you mean about the hazards of smoking. I loved my cigarettes. You could have told me everyone around me was going to die if they didn't quit and it wouldn't have stopped me. I did quit 14 years ago and I am glad.

You are probably wondering how a person who smoked for over 15 years could quit overnight. Let me tell you.

I had a very good friend who, like me, didn't believe he would ever be the victim of lung cancer. He just kept puffing away like me, two, sometimes three packs a day. The day finally came.

You've probably seen it before. The X-rays showed a tumor in the lungs that you couldn't see until it got the size of a baseball. Then the doctor told him he couldn't operate on him. After that the six months waiting until death finally took him.

I learned from this. My friend said to me, "Bob, quit now before it's too late." I did.

Who was this friend? My father.

DEAR READER — Your father did you one last good turn before he died. And in quitting smoking I know you must have filled one of his most important wishes.

Eighty percent of lung cancers occur in people who smoke. It follows that the leading cause of cancer deaths in men and the second or third most common cause in women could be prevented usually if no one smoked. We spend enormous sums of money to find a cure for a disease that could easily be prevented. It doesn't make sense. Prevention always beats a cure.

Beyond the problem of lung cancer are the other bad effects of tobacco. These include chronic lung disease, which is almost as bad, and digestive complaints. The risk of heart attacks or sudden death is three times as great in smokers as in nonsmokers. There is almost nothing to recommend a smoking habit.

I know you will want to read The Health Letter 19-6, Tobacco, The Great Health Hazard, which I am sending to you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have rheumatic heart disease and am on Digoxin. I also have a high cholesterol. Is there anything I can do to correct this other than taking Digoxin? I have been on it for two years now. I am only 50 years old and have not gone through the menopause yet and would like to prepare myself for the times ahead.

DEAR READER — You are wise to think ahead. It is better to prevent fatty-cholesterol deposits than start a program after a complication has already occurred.

Digoxin is not to control your cholesterol. It and other digitalis preparations are to strengthen your heart muscle contractions to prevent or control heart muscle failure.

Telephones just not good enough to 'reach out and touch'

By DOROTHY STORCK
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

Commentary

I've been watching those "Reach out and touch someone" ads the telephone company keeps running on television, the ones that show vignettes about the difference a call can make in the life of someone you love, and I've been feeling vaguely uneasy.

It's not just that no one in those warm, wonderful ads is ever in the tub when the call comes, or on the way to the dentist, or sulking in a corner refusing to talk. We are accustomed by now to the immaculate lives of all the people in television ads.

The problem is that reaching out and touching someone is not, to me, making a phone call or getting one.

If you want to touch someone, you go visit him. Maybe take him to lunch. Sometimes you can do it by writing a letter.

The only time I am perfectly at ease talking on the telephone is at 2 a.m., just after the party breaks up. That's when my antipathy to the telephone is dulled enough so that I don't realize I'm holding it in my hand.

Unfortunately, 2 a.m. is not always the time some people want to be reached and touched.

I have telephones all over my house, but I'm not crazy about them. The telephone company sold them to me over the phone. Their ring always startles me, since I associate telephone rings with bad news, like telegrams.

It seems to me that people would keep appointments better if there were no telephones to call up and break the date.

People would be forced to plan ahead, make commitments. There would be no more of this "I'll give you a call" nonsense when you know very well you'll do no such thing.

Besides, I don't talk very well on the telephone. I have a non-telephonic voice. I know this because people on the other end of the phone keep asking me if something is wrong.

My throat closes over, I become hostile, there are long silences. I realize each time someone calls up to chat over the phone just how much I need the look of the people I am talking to. I want to see the way they move, the nods they give and how they use their hands and eyes. This is called "nonverbal communication" in pop psych language. It's important. It fills out the interchange.

The happiest invention is the telephone answering machine. That way, a machine can talk to a machine, which is philosophically just.

People in the same room with me have commented on my telephone manner.

"That was your father you were talking to?" they will ask, "You sounded as if you were talking to the IRS."

I suppose it takes early training to be able to reach out and touch someone on the telephone. All those people in the telephone company ads must once have been teen-agers with their own phones, or at least teen-agers with no parents to tell them to make it snappy because they aren't the only people in the house who need to use the phone.

Either that, or they're people who never had a phone before and are fascinated with it the way people in those home computer ads are so fascinated with their computers that they won't even take lunch breaks away from them.

I mention all this about phones right now because I just read an article in Psychology Today magazine pointing out that the telephone has definite advantages over face-to-face conversation if you're involved in certain kinds of negotiating.

Organization key to substantial refunds, coupon savings

By LINDA CICERO
Knight-Ridder Newspapers

She put a 10-pound turkey in the cart, $11.19. A package of ground beef, $4.11. A dozen eggs, a pound of bacon, a gallon of milk. Three heads of lettuce at 89 cents each.

A pineapple, six ears of corn, 10 pounds of potatoes. Six cartons of cigarettes, four boxes of Triscuits, cat and dog food, a frozen dinner, five tubes of toothpaste, assorted canned vegetables. A bottle of Top Job, a bottle of Fantastik, a box of Spic and Span, a container of cleanser and several paper towel holders.

With assorted other food and non-food items, Jan Leasure's grocery store purchases rang up a $209.45 total at the check-out counter. Then the clerk began to deduct Leasure's cents-off coupons and manufacturer's refund certificates from the total. The keys flashed, the subtractions multiplied.

The bottom line was that Leasure owed the store only $5.01 for her two carts full of groceries.

This, of course, was a set-up demonstration of the power of couponing and refunding. Leasure, who writes the "Super $aver" column that appears in many U.S. newspapers, was in Florida on vacation and agreed to go shopping to show how a wise consumer can save money. She concedes that it took her about eight weeks to accumulate the coupons and refund certificates used in the shopping spree.

But when she does her own shopping at home in Libertyville, Ill., Leasure maintains that she regularly saves between 30 and 50 percent of her average $100-a-week grocery bill. (She gets the higher savings if a supermarket in her area runs a "double-coupon" promotion, when the market doubles the total of manufacturer's coupons.) We purposefully conducted our demonstration, however, at a grocery store that was redeeming coupons only at their face value.

Leasure says if we had "double-couponed," she could have doubled the savings. In addition, she had about $100 worth of coupons that were not usable in the demonstration because the store at which we shopped did not carry the brands or the sizes specified.

How does she do it?

First, Leasure wants to clear up a popular misconception. She does not get extra coupons from manufacturers because she writes a column. She does, however, get extras by trading with other consumers.

"You should have a goal of trying to get as many coupons as you can for products you regularly use," she says. "You may only see three or four coupons in the newspaper that you'll use. But you should clip out the other 10 or whatever and trade them like baseball cards to get what you want." Leasure also trades refund forms and proofs of purchase.

Now, to those who say they don't have the time to clip coupons, Leasure says, "Phooey." Anybody who wants to save money makes time to clip. Leasure herself has several major responsibilities beyond her column. She's mom to a 3-year-old son, Jordan; has written several books; edits a monthly newsletter, "Refunders Against Inflation," that circulates to 10,000; AND teaches junior-high English full time.

If you are organized, Leasure says, you can devote an hour a week to coupon clipping and filing, two hours a week to refunding and reap the kinds of savings she does. However, she cautions that "couponing and refund promotions don't ever replace comparison shopping. They are just important tools for you to use in lowering your costs."

She says the average family of four spends about $5,000 a year at the supermarket. "Yet most people take grocery shopping so casually. If you were going to go out and buy a car, you'd go to different car dealers and compare prices." She says that without much effort, a family of four can knock 20 percent off its food bill by diligently using coupons and sending for refunds.

She offered these tips for novice coupon clippers:

• Organize your coupons according to a system that is workable for you. She uses the aisle-file method, distributing her coupons according to where they'll be found in the grocery. She keeps her files in a box that fits in the seat of a shopping cart.

• Make a shopping list before you go to the store — after comparing newspaper ads. Deviate from the list only for a special sale.

• Don't buy a product you wouldn't normally use just because you have a coupon.

• In most cases, you should buy the smallest size of any product for which you have a coupon. "This is economics turned upside down. Common sense would tell you to buy the largest size. But with a coupon, the smallest size gives you a greater percentage of savings."

• If you find a special sale for an item for which you have several coupons, buy in bulk. For example, she says she has not paid anything for laundry detergent in four years. "I've found that there is a nearly unlimited supply of 35-cent and 50-cent off coupons for any size of Cheer. I wait until I accumulate a bunch of them and a store near me is offering double coupons. Then I buy a case of the smallest size, which retails for about 85 cents. I end up paying little or nothing or even getting some money back."

• Never turn down anything free. Leasure doesn't smoke, but has an aunt who does. She keeps her supplied with free cigarettes.

• Never throw anything away. "Just about every product offers a refund sooner or later," she says, pointing out that about 500 new refund offers are made each month by manufacturers. For those with storage problems, she says you can streamline what you save by becoming aware of what proof-of-purchase (UPC code, boxtop, label) a manufacturer is likely to require. She uses both a utility room and part of her garage to store items she has bought in bulk and her stash of proofs of purchase. Leasure says, "If I'm going to save money, I'd even store things under the bed if I had to."

• Set a goal for your refunding money; it makes it more fun. "It doesn't seem like much when the checks start dribbling in for a dollar or a dollar and a quarter," she says. "But it adds up." Leasure and her husband took a trip to Acapulco with her first year's refunds; the next year they furnished their daughter's bedroom.

At wit's end

Those tourists are coming again!

BY ERMA BOMBECK
Field Enterprises, Inc.

The tourists are coming! The tourists are coming!

This year, for the first time, the number of foreign visitors to the United States exceeds the number of Americans traveling abroad.

For those of you who have traveled extensively, I beg you to have compassion for these pilgrims who climb off the plane having consumed 18 hard rolls and a plastic chicken.

Those brave adventurers who balance a 35-pound camera around their neck and a tote bag filled with jelly beans which their travel agent told them the natives would accept in exchange for the privilege of taking their picture.

Those gypsy nomads who cringe every time they have to flash their passport. (If they look like their picture, they're too sick to travel.)

Those truth seekers who have studied the history, economics, politics, and power structure of America through satellite television and know two words: Matt Dillon.

Already, I could cry for them.

Some bus tour will tell them the No. 1 not-to-be-missed historic site is in White Sands, N.M., where the space shuttle, Columbia, recently landed. It has a few rattlesnakes, land mines and porta-potties, but you'll never forgive yourself if you go home without seeing it.

Another tour guide will charge them $40 a head to ride a mechanical bull in Texas and experience a "typical American evening out." They will be served barbecued ribs at a long table by a waiter who speaks only Spanish.

The itinerary will undoubtedly include a tour of a plastic factory where a showroom will have a prominent sign, "WE SHIP ANYWHERE," a trip through a bowery where they can see an American derelict, and a visit to the cave where Jesse James and his gang were reported to have hidden out. (Please use flash and set your cameras at 160th of a second.)

They will load up on "American" food: tacos, pizza, egg rolls and Polish sausage, and buy a cowboy hat they don't have the nerve to wear home.

The high point will be Disneyland, where they will pay $8 for a 52-year-old mouse on a T-shirt and meet other tourists in line waiting for rides.

They will go home convinced they have "seen America."

What a shame. All you tourists, and you all know who you are, can take my picture by five genuine American garbage cans for a bag of jelly beans. How about it?

Offer made to purchase Kellwood

Prospective buyer still a secret

By STEVE LIPSON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An Idaho company has made an offer to purchase the vacant Kellwood Co. hosiery plant in Twin Falls.

A written offer from the unnamed company was received Tuesday at Kellwood's St. Louis headquarters, according to Sharon Bateman, a Kellwood spokeswoman. But a decision on the offer probably will not be made until late next month, she said.

"We have received an offer to purchase. We have been asked not to disclose the company's name. I can tell you it is an Idaho-based firm," Bateman said. "It is the firmest offer we've had."

It was two years ago this week that Kellwood announced plans to close the pantyhose manufacturing plant, located just south of Twin Falls. The 10-year-old plant employed about 370 people and had an annual payroll of about $3.4 million at the time.

Tuesday's purchase offer contains some conditions that still must be worked out, Bateman said, but financing is not one of them. "The company has financing, which is the basis for them presenting the proposal to us."

The "target date" for working out the conditions and accepting or rejecting the offer is late June, she said.

The potential buyer is the same company that sparked optimism of a sale in February. At that time, during the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce annual banquet, chamber President Doug Vollmer said a sale of the Kellwood building might be announced in the next few weeks.

Those weeks turned into months, however, and even with an offer now submitted to Kellwood, confusion remains.

According to Bateman, the real-estate agent for the potential buyer is Blue Lakes Realty in Twin Falls.

Stan Haye, the broker at Blue Lakes Realty, said he does indeed have a client interested in the facility. However, no offer has been submitted from that client through his office, he said Tuesday.

"There is a possibility that our client, through his attorney, has had contact with Kellwood," Haye said. "There never has been an offer yet through this office."

Informed of those comments, Bateman said Kellwood definitely has received a written offer to purchase the building. And she said that aside from this "No. 1 prime prospect," several other companies also have shown serious interest in the facility.

Mike Dolton, the Twin Falls chamber's executive director, said two other companies have shown a strong interest in the property recently.

The company submitting the offer is the one the chamber has worked with for three months in hopes of arranging a sale of the idle facility, Dolton said. But he would not reveal any details about the company, its plans for the facility or the nature of its business.

Mediator called in to break Minidoka contract deadlock

By GLEN WARCHOL
Times-News writer

RUPERT — A federal mediator will be called in to resolve the deadlocked negotiations between the Minidoka School District and its teachers over a new contract.

At a Friday bargaining session, the teachers rejected the board's offer of a 5 percent across-the-board salary increase, which would have been contingent upon voter approval of an approximately $250,000 override levy.

At a special meeting Monday, the board decided that until an agreement is reached with the teachers, it will postpone any decision on whether or not to seek the override levy.

Tying teachers' salary increases to override levies has been a practice in Minidoka County for the past few years. Last year's $247,000 override passed by a 10-vote margin.

The teachers are asking for a 13 percent increase in their base salary, regardless of whether or not the override passes. The teachers claim that a recent 10 percent increase in state funds to the district could be used to fund a boost in their pay.

Although the 13 percent salary increase is negotiable, said Ann Hayes, the chief teachers' negotiator, the teachers have lost patience with the board's policy of making pay increases dependent on yearly overrides. That practice, she said, reflects an attitude that places a low priority on teachers.

"Teachers should come first," she said. "Then, the other things should be dealt with."

The board is not happy with the "vicious cycle" of yearly overrides either, said Russ Holland, the board's vice chairman and negotiations spokesman.

But the district has no other way of raising the money for increased teachers' salaries and still maintain the present level of education, he said.

If the override failed, and — under the teachers' proposal — salary increases remained in place, Holland said some education or athletic programs would have to be cut.

"What they want us to do is cut other programs," he said, "and then go for an override to reinstate the programs."

That policy could be counterproductive to the teachers in the long run, Holland said. Elimination of programs, he said, ultimately means elimination of teaching positions.

Federal mediator Tom Curdie, who is based in Salt Lake City, cannot meet with the negotiators until June 22.

And until agreement is reached, Holland said individual contracts will be issued, based on last year's salary schedule. The district's current base salary is $11,385.

Snow survey sparks flood warning

HAILEY — Counties along the Big Wood River are preparing for spring flooding after receiving the latest snow-survey information from the Big Wood drainage area.

Rick Stauty, a Soil Conservation Service snow surveyor in Hailey, recommended Tuesday that persons living near the river remove valuable items from the flood plain, as well as debris that could block the passage of water.

Measurements on Friday revealed that the water content in snow on the Big Wood drainage was 60 percent above normal for May 1, Stauty said. The Little Wood and Lost River drainages were 39 percent and 56 percent above normal, respectively.

Snow at lower elevations — below 8,000 feet — also is not melting according to the normal pattern, increasing the possibility of flooding, he said.

The Graham Ranch snow course above the Big Wood, for example, normally loses 5.2 inches of water during April, but this year, the station gained 1.8 inches during the month.

Sheriff Dennis Haynes said Tuesday that the Blaine County Disaster Board plans to meet this week to coordinate preparations to deal with the anticipated flooding.

Meanwhile, the Big Wood Canal Co. has lowered the western bank of Magic Reservoir to form an emergency spillway if flood waters exceed the concrete spillway's capacity of around 12,000 cubic feet per second, said Reid Newby of Shoshone, the Big Wood watermaster.

Shoshone has a supply of sandbags on hand, and Lincoln County has placed its disaster service plan in a state of "increased readiness," said Newby, who is also the Shoshone mayor and Lincoln County civil-defense director.

Officials said flooding could occur any time through the end of June.

Yarbrough named new mayor of Hagerman

HAGERMAN — Karen Yarbrough is the new mayor of Hagerman.

City Council voted unanimously Tuesday night to accept the resignation of Mayor Bill Stinemates, and it elected Yarbrough, who was council president, to take his place.

Despite a 90-signature petition presented to council and several personal requests that urged Stinemates to keep his position, the resignation was not withdrawn.

The former mayor cited "a change in personal plans" as his only reason for resigning, effective last Friday.

"It (the petition drive) was a really nice thing to do," Stinemates commented later. "It made me feel good. They wanted me to stay on, but I had a personal change of plans, so that was it."

He commended Yarbrough as being an excellent replacement.

Yarbrough, who presided over the meeting, declined to make an immediate appointment to fill her now-vacant council seat. Instead, she announced that applications for the position will be accepted at City Hall until Friday, May 14.

From the applications, Yarbrough will select and appoint the new council member at the May 18 meeting.

Burglaries dip sharply in city

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The number of burglaries committed in the city of Twin Falls apparently has nose-dived, according to figures released Tuesday.

A Twin Falls police study, comparing the burglary rates for the first 14 weeks of 1981 and 1982, shows a dramatic drop in the number of home and automobile burglaries, and a substantial decline in the number of business burglaries committed this year. As a result, the report indicates that the target of burglaries has shifted away from automobiles and homes toward businesses.

According to the study:

- There were 97 automobile burglaries committed in the first 14 weeks of 1981, compared to 40 committed as of April 13, a drop of 59 percent.
- There were 67 home burglaries committed in the 1981 sample period, compared to 28 in 1982, a drop of 58 percent.
- There were 59 burglaries of businesses during the first 14 weeks of 1981, compared to 42 for the same period in 1982.

The report also shows a major drop in the value of the items that were stolen. During the first 14 weeks of 1981, police estimated that $143,359 worth of merchandise was taken, compared to the estimated $63,662 taken during the same period this year.

"In my years as a police officer, this is the sharpest decrease in crime in any period of time," says Chief Tim Qualls. But he says the study period was too short to draw a definite conclusion.

A more detailed report of the Police Department's activities throughout the past year will be released shortly. And Qualls says his department will prepare another burglary statistical report for the second quarter of 1982 for comparison.

Qualls also warns that the public should not conclude that they can "relax" in their crime-prevention efforts as a result of the report.

In fact, Qualls believes crime-prevention programs, such as Neighborhood Watch, may be the reason behind the drop.

Another explanation may be the series of burglar arrests by the department earlier this year, he says.

The apparent drop in burglaries committed in the city has contributed to what county Prosecutor Harry DeHaan says has been a recent 15-percent drop in his criminal case load.

But the decline in burglaries apparently has not carried over to the rural areas of the county. Sheriff Jim Munn estimates that the number of burglary reports received by his department has remained constant.

'Unbeatable' Bradshaw's retirement triggers 3-way race

By BRUCE HAMMOND

CAMPAIGN '82 The primaries

TWIN FALLS — When Sen. Ken Bradshaw, R-Wendell, decided to retire from his District 23 seat, he opened up the biggest primary race in the Magic Valley.

Three Republicans want to replace the three-term veteran. All say they would have sought the position earlier except that they believed Bradshaw was unbeatable.

"But now that his job is open, it's time to run," says candidate Rick Brailsford of Wendell.

It could be one of the more interesting races simply because each of the candidates has strong popular support:

- Brailsford, 34, is a six-term Gooding County commissioner whose wife, Karen, was the county Republican committee chairman until her husband's campaign began.
- Wes Trounson, 66, who served as Gooding County assessor for 30 years, gained popularity when he refused to implement residential tax increases under the One Percent Initiative, despite charges being filed by the State Tax Commission.
- Ralph Peters, 60, the Jerome mayor, ran unopposed last year on a promise to settle the feud between the Jerome police and City Council, an issue which appears dormant at present.

Although no opposition exists in the primary for Democratic candidate Floyd Kisling, 71, of Dietrich, he has a similiar popular following as a retired farmer and former four-term state representative.

KEN BRADSHAW

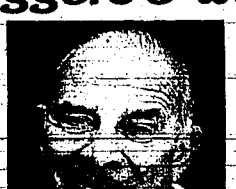
RALPH PETERS
Mayor of Jerome

RICK BRAILSFORD
Six-term commissioner



WES TROUNSON
Former county assessor

Ralph Peters

Semi-retired from farming and a land-title business, Peters has lived in the Jerome area since 1929, except for a three-and-a-half year stint with the military during World War II. For several years, he has lobbied for legislation in his role as a long-time councilman and legislative chairman for the Jerome Chamber of Commerce.

"I depend almost entirely on good facts and figures when I make any decision. You have to look at the whole story, not at just one side or one emotional aspect of an issue."

Compiling those "facts and figures" has helped Peters influence others to join his side, he claims.

"In expressing my opinions I've always been rather brief, but I believe this will help me become effective in representing our area in the Senate."

Peters isn't pushing any specific legislation, nor does he have any particular goals. He views a state senator's role as one of representation rather than advocacy.

"You spend the money for what the majority of the people want, not necessarily for what you want. Course, when you define the majority, it can be questionable sometimes."

That's when statesmanship comes into play, and he says that he's proven over the years that he has the temperament to adjust to changing situations and the "ability to sort out the facts and find the best alternative when no perfect solution exists."

"One of my main contentions is that all legislation ultimately affects everyone, and so the role can't be taken lightly. Even a trucking bill creates changes because it affects the price of food."

Wes Trounson

Many local Republicans call Trounson the man to beat — an opinion apparently bolstered by the fact that Trounson is not planning an active campaign.

"Don't get me wrong, I do want to be elected," Trounson says. "But I don't want to get it simply because people see my name plastered on signs all over people's yards, and I

Water board considers Carey-area canal loan

TWIN FALLS — The state Water Resources Board will hold a special meeting today to consider authorizing a loan to help the Little Wood Canal Co. repair flood damages near Hailey.

M. Reed Hansen, the board chairman, called the meeting solely to deal with the request. The session will begin at 9 a.m. in the Twin Falls City Hall, 321 E. Second Ave.

The Little Wood canal system suffered substantial damage in recent flooding and needs immediate help to get back into operation, Gov. John Evans said Monday in requesting the assistance.

Evans allocated $10,000 from an emergency fund his office maintains to aid in the repairs.

In addition, the company reportedly will ask for a loan of between $15,000 to $25,000 to repair canals and other irrigation structures.

Total damage from the flood, which struck the community of Carey and surrounding farm areas on April 24, has been estimated at $1.8 million.

Burley does offer 'budget' utility bills, mayor answers

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — In response to inquiries from a group from the South Central Community Action Agency, Burley Mayor Chuck Shadduck said Monday night that a levelized utility payment plan always has been offered to residents who use municipal utilities.

Dan Harrison, from the Burley Community Action office, said a citizens group affiliated with the agency has been asking utilities in the Rupert and Burley areas to provide levelized, or "budget," payment plans.

Speaking at Burley City Council's regular meeting, Shadduck said residents can have their utility payments averaged throughout the year, so it "will not be quite as severe a blow" when they receive higher bills during winter months.

"All you have to do is come in and ask for it," the mayor said.

The city provides electric, water, sewer and garbage-removal services.

Also at the meeting, Shadduck asked for community assistance in cleaning up Gem Memorial Garden cemetery on Friday, May 14.

Last month, council voted to ask for ownership of the cemetery, which has been in receivership since last year. The Fifth District Court has yet to rule on the city's request. Shadduck had said earlier the cemetery is in bad shape.

"We only hope the citizens that have property there or ones buried there will come out to help," he said.

City crews also will be present to clean up the cemetery, he said.

In other action:

• Six bids were opened for 3,400 water meters, which will be installed over the next three years. Council will not make a decision on awarding the contract until a later date. Companies from Idaho, Utah and California submitted bids. Rockwell International of California submitted the apparent low bid at $96,450.

The new water meters will be easier to repair, Shadduck said.

• Interim fire Chief Russell Vaughn received approval for himself and three other firefighters to attend a state training school on June 24-25 in Boise. Vaughn said $575 already has been budgeted for the school.

Obituaries

Gerald Morgan

RUPERT — Gerald Morgan, 68, of Rupert, died Tuesday at Universally Medical Center in Salt Lake City of an extended illness.

Services are pending and will be announced by Hansen Mortuary of Rupert.

Harry Heller

TWIN FALLS — Harry Heller, 91, a former Twin Falls resident, died April 28 in Tucson, Ariz.

A past president of the Idaho Horticultural Society, he was a former produce grower and dealer north of Filer, big game hunter and philanthropist. He was born in Colorado and came with his family to Idaho in 1915.

He was a ranger with the U. S. Forest Service and later was a big game hunter and guide, making several trips to Alaska, the last when he was 85.

He married Esther Lively in 1915. They moved to Tucson in the early 1940's. She died there in 1957.

In 1973 he contributed $50,000 to a nursing scholarship program at the University of Arizona and in 1977 he published the story of his life in a booklet titled "Eighty Years with Harry Oakes Heller."

He made annual trips to Idaho and Oregon to fish.

There were no funeral services. He was cremated and his ashes strewn near Gates Pass, Ariz.

Carrie A. Morgan

BUHL — Carrie A. Morgan, 87, of Buhl, died Monday at Harrals Nursing Home.

Born at Hunley, Neb., on Jan. 30, 1895, where she was reared and educated. She married J. Ralph Morgan on Nov. 4, 1914, at Kenesaw, Neb. They came to Filer in 1920 and moved to Buhl in 1936, where they resided on a farm. She was employed by the Jack Mosa Bakery and the C.C. Anderson Co., both of Buhl for many years.

She was a member of the Baptist Church.

Surviving are: a son, Dale R. Morgan of Gooding; two daughters, Maxine Patterson of Buhls and Lucille Lancaster of Wendell; two brothers, Walter and Leslie Allmand of Holdrege, Neb.; a sister, Velva Emswiler of Des Moines, Iowa; five grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren.

The service will be held at 10:30 a.m. on Thursday at the Hopkins Buhl Funeral Chapel with Rev. Benson Kern officiating. Burial will be in the West End Cemetery in Buhl. Friends may call at the chapel all day today.

Leo J. Handy

HEYBURN — Leo J. Handy, 76, of Heyburn, died Tuesday at the Twin Falls Clinic Hospital following a lingering illness.

Born July 27, 1905, in Malta, the family moved to a homestead in the Big Bend district and later to a farm in Heyburn. He graduated from Heyburn High School and Albion State Normal School. He taught in the Heyburn elementary school for two years and then began a trucking business in 1928, hauling milk for the Jerome Cooperative Creamery.

In the late 1940s he formed the Handy Truck Line, which is still in operation.

He married Dorothy Fruit in Boise on March 26, 1930. They moved to their present home in Heyburn in 1931, where they had resided since.

He served two terms in the Idaho Legislature, six years on the Heyburn-Paul Highway Board, four years on the Minidoka County School Board, 25 years on the Heyburn City Council and 25 years on the Idaho Motor Transport board, where he served one year as president. He was active in the Burley Christian Church, serving as deacon, board member, trustee and for many years as its financial secretary.

In 1960, he was presented the Founder's Award by the American Truck Historical Society, which recognizes a company owned and operated by the same family for over 50 years. It was the first such award given in Idaho.

Surviving are his wife of Heyburn; a son, Donald of Paul; a brother, Ernest of Heyburn; four grandchildren; and 10 great-grandchildren.

The service will be held on Friday at 10 a.m. in the Burley Christian Church with Pastor David Vernon officiating. Burial will be in the Riverside Cemetery at Heyburn. Friends may call at McCulloch's of Burley on Thursday from 2 to 8:30 p.m. and on Friday prior to the services.

The family suggest memorial contributions to the Primary Childrens Hospital in Salt Lake City, or the Burley Christian Church.

Gus P. Stertman

HAILEY — Gus P. Stertman, 74, of Hailey, died Monday at Blaine County Hospital in Hailey following a long illness.

Born Feb. 4, 1908, in Sweden, he came from Sweden at the age of 20 to Washington state and worked in the logging business for five years before moving to Oregon.

He married Anna Mae Stoner on Sept. 15, 1944, in Winnemucca, Nev. They farmed in Vale, Ore. for three years, then moving to Ontario, Ore., where they operated a meat-packing plant until 1964, at which time they purchased the fishing resort on the east side of Magic Reservoir which they operated for 18 years. They retired from the business 10 years ago.

He also worked as a ski-lift operator for 15 winter seasons until this last year. He was a charter member of the BPOE in Ontario, Ore.

Surviving are: his wife of Hailey; a daughter, Sonjia Chiprany of San Diego; a brother and two sisters, all of Sweden; and two grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents and seven brothers and sisters.

A graveside service will be held at 2 p.m. on Thursday at the Hailey Cemetery with Father Douglas J. Hadley officiating. Friends may call at the Wood River Chapel in Hailey today from 1 to 7 p.m. and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The family suggests memorial contributions to the Blaine County Senior Citizens Center.

Herbert L. Helms

JEROME — Herbert Lee Helms, 68, of Jerome, died Monday evening at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Boise.

Born Dec. 19, 1913, in Hamilton, he attended schools in Hazelton and at Greenwood. He served with the U.S. Army in the Pacific during World War II. He married Dora Romero in King County, Washington in 1942. They were later divorced.

Following his discharge he returned to Jerome and had farmed in the area since that time. He was a member and past commander of the Jerome American Legion, a member of the National Rifle Association and a member of the Jerome Rod and Gun Club.

Surviving are: a daughter, Linda Lee Beckman of Jerome; two sons, Robert Helms and Richard Helms, both of Jerome; a brother, Oliver Helms of Bremerton, Wash.; three sisters, Violet M. Helms and Phyllis McIntyre, both of Kimberly, Frances Truxel of Auburn, Wash., and Mary Mahler of Homedale; a grandson and five granddaughters.

The service will be held Friday at 2 p.m. in the Hove Funeral Chapel in Jerome with Rev. Richard Gosnell officiating. Military Rites will be conducted by the Twin Falls American Legion, VFW, DAV and Pearl Harbor Survivors at Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls. Friends may call at the Chapel on Thursday from 3 to 9 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Andrew Critchfield

TWIN FALLS — Andrew "Bud" Critchfield, 73, of Salmon, a former Twin Falls resident, died April 27, 1982, in a Spokane, Wash., hospital.

Born June 18, 1908, in Kimberly, he was raised near Oakley and later in the Stanley Basin area. He attended schools in Stanley, Sunnyd and Twin Falls.

Early in his life he carried mail into Seafoam with a dogsled and down the river with a team and sled to Robinson Bar. He also worked in the Challis National Forest, spending summers cleaning trails and as a lookout on Basin Butte and Rough Neck Mountains. In 1936 he began working for the state of Idaho Department of Highways and became a heavy equipment operator.

He married Stella Merritt on June 20, 1938, in Lower Stanley. They lived on the family ranch and wintered in Stanley. He retired from the highway department in 1972 and moved to Salmon in 1980. He was a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Surviving are: his wife of Salmon, two daughters, Sadie Ann Thornton of Dale City, Virginia and Judy Smith of Challis; a son, Andrew Jan Critchfield of Post Falls; 14 grandchildren; and his sister, Bonda Niece of Salmon. He was preceded in death by two half sisters, two half brothers and a grandson.

Services were held in Salmon on April 30, 1982.

BURLEY — A 1,500 pound rampaging bull led Burley police and Cassia County sheriff officers on a wild chase Monday evening through Burley.

No one was hurt in the incident, but a sheriff's car and several fences were damaged. The bull died later of exhaustion.

About 5:30 p.m., employees of the Burley Veterinary Clinic, which is less than a mile south of Burley, were trying to unload the animal, but it broke away and went through three fences, said Bill Crystal, the Cassia County undersheriff.

The bull headed for the 200 block area of Hansen and Normal streets, chased several shoppers in the Smith Food King shopping center and then "made a rallying tour" of the 1700 and 2100 block areas of Oakley, Miller and Park streets, Crystal said.

"He was very mean and tried to get people," the deputy reported.

North of the Burley Junior High School, officers successfully blocked the bull from entering an apartment complex area where children were playing, Crystal said. Two officers pulled their cars out in front of the bull. The animal hit the vehicle driven by Crystal head-on and caved in the door.

Crystal said he headed out the other door.

Two employees from the clinic lassoed the animal near the junior high school and then used a wench to load it into a trailer, Crystal said. The animal died of exhaustion in the trailer, he said.

The bull, which was owned by Buddy Ward of Malta, was loose about 45 minutes, Crystal said.

The damage to the sheriff's car was estimated at $200.

Burley to host tour Thursday

BURLEY — The ninth annual Burley city tour will be held this Thursday.

This year's trip will include a visit to Cassia County's garbage-fueled steam plant near Heyburn.

The invitation-only group will tour the various city departments in the morning, according to Mayor Chuck Shadduck. The tour will begin at 9:30 at City Hall. The group will have lunch at the Burley Senior Center, then tour the steam plant in the afternoon.

More than 70 persons will participate in this year's tour, including several Twin Falls City Council members, Shadduck said.

State officials and presidents of area civic groups are among those who are invited, he said. Through the tour, the participants often find they can provide help with the city's projects, Shadduck said.

Obesity and Chiropractic

by Dr. Ludwig C. Landwehr

OBESITY: frequently is a result of glandular malfunction.

Most cases of obesity rest upon a basis of disturbed metabolism. This may take the form of improper digestion. In such cases the digestive system fails in its function of transforming down the food for there can be glandular malfunction — an insufficient thyroid secretion of thyroxin, the substance that burns fats and sugars, to convert them into energy. Sometimes the pituitary gland is at fault.

Improper functioning of the digestive system, of the thyroid gland or of the pituitary gland all have a common cause, of which the original trouble can be traced to some impediment of the nerve supply to one or two or all of them.

Your doctor of chiropractic directs his work to the restoration of a normal flow of vital energy over the nerves and gradually reverses the bodily metabolism. At the same time he will want to adjust the food intake.

DeHann retracts 'family' remark

TWIN FALLS — Harry DeHann, the Twin Falls County prosecutor, has retracted a recent courtroom statement concerning the background of a defendant's family.

The statement, made during a sentencing hearing in Fifth District Court on April 26 for 20-year-old Robert Dean Nevil of Buhl, infuriated members of Nevil's family, who said the statement was inaccurate and unfair.

At the hearing, DeHaan argued in favor of sending Nevil to prison and rejected defense lawyer Mike Walz's contention that the defendant's problems stemmed from alcohol abuse. But in an off-hand remark, the prosecutor said Nevil might have "a genetic defense since his entire family is in trouble with the law."

Nevil was ordered to spend 120 days at the North Idaho Correctional Institute at Cottonwood following his conviction for possession of stolen property.

Later, DeHaan said he was referring to Nevil's 23-year-old brother, Derrell, who was convicted last year of battery charges and also was involved in a series of jail protests.

But the statement, which was published in the April 28 edition of The Times-News, branded the entire family, including members who have never had any problems with the law, Baker said.

"I was raised in the same surroundings as the rest of them, and I've never been in any trouble at all," said Gwen Baker, a sister of the brothers and who sought the retraction. "I'm really upset with it because he's put down the whole family."

In response, DeHaan apologized to the family Tuesday:

"I freely apologize to the law-abiding members of the Nevil family," DeHaan said. "I certainly had plenty of Nevil files in my office in the last year. However, I should not have said the entire Nevil family."

Man admits 'touching' young girl

George Merkle, 1088 Park Meadows, was charged with lewdly touching the girl. Prosecutors say the incident occurred Feb. 20.

Under Idaho law, the charge is punishable by up to a life-prison sentence. Judge Daniel Meehl of the Fifth District Court ordered a presentence investigation.

Also Monday, the case of 20-year-old Lisa Guerra, who was convicted on four counts of selling cocaine in 1980, officially ended Monday when Meehl released the Twin Falls woman from her two-year probation.

Guerra's felony convictions also were removed from her record when Meehl reduced the four counts to misdemeanors.

Both moves were supported by the Idaho Division of Probation and Parole, which monitored her probation after she returned from a 120-day term at the North Idaho Correctional Institute at Cottonwood, and by deputy prosecutor Dennis Voorhees.

In other court matters:

- Cecil Alfredo Valencia, 22, of Twin Falls, was ordered to serve a 120-day term at the Cottonwood facility after he admitted violating a two-year-old probation, imposed last year, by committing two house burglaries earlier this year. Provided he successfully completes the NICI program, the probation could be reinstated.
- Gary Lee Dumas, 21, of Twin Falls, also was ordered to spend four months at Cottonwood for violating a two-year probation, imposed in December 1981.

Register quickly

Voter registration deadline for May primary approaching

TWIN FALLS — The deadline for voter registration for the May 25 primary is less than two weeks away.

Friday is the last day voters can register with their respective area registrars. For example, in Twin Falls County there are registrars in each of the 47 precincts in the county. The following week, voters can register with their respective county clerk's office.

In Twin Falls County, the clerk's office will extend its operations to 8 p.m. on Friday, May 14, to handle any last-minute rush.

In order to vote, persons must be at least 18 and must have established residency at least 30 days prior to registering.

In Twin Falls County, approximately 27,000 people are registered to vote in the primary, which is consistent with the number of registered voters at the time of the 1978 general election. However nearly 6,000 voters in Twin Falls County lost their registration status by failing to vote in the 1980 general election.

Man charged with beating baby sitter

Darrell Dumas remained in the county jail Tuesday in lieu of $5,000 bail, following his appearance in Fifth District Magistrate Court. The public defender has been appointed to represent him.

According to the charge, Dumas allegedly beat Mar Lee Vaugh of Buhl late Monday. Buhl police said the woman called them, alleging that Dumas had beaten her after she warned the defendant against disturbing the child.

The woman reportedly was beaten about the face and arms. She was treated and released at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Two men face charges of grand theft

TWIN FALLS — Two Wendell men have requested preliminary hearings on charges that they stole three snowmobiles from a Twin Falls business earlier this year.

Richard Allen Jones, 19, and Ted Anderson, 18, appeared Tuesday in Fifth District Magistrate Court on grand theft charges. They were issued summons to appear in court after the charges were filed April 14.

Both men were released on their own recognizance after their court appearance.

According to the charge, the men allegedly removed three snowmobiles and a snowmobile trailer from Gem Equipment Inc., off Kimberly Road, on Jan. 3. The company owned one of the machines, while the other two snowmobiles and the trailer belonged to Tom Jones, 1879 San La Rue Ave, Twin Falls.

Two Twin Falls women are injured in Arizona

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls women are hospitalized in Yuma, Ariz., from injuries received in an auto accident there April 19, their relatives report.

Betty Leazer and Marge Harris were injured when they were involved in an accident 53 miles south of Yuma. Leazer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Norman of Jerome, also were passengers in the vehicle, but they were not hospitalized.

Harris is expected to be released from the hospital soon, but Leazer will require extensive medical treatment. She is in the Regional Medical Center, Room 326-B, Yuma, Ariz., 85364.

Election

don't want to do it with someone else's money.

"I'm the one to be elected, so I'll pay for what little campaign I'll have. I don't need much."

Like Peters (they're boyhood friends), Trounson has no ax to grind with the Legislature.

"After two years of retirement (from the county assessor's post), I'd like to continue serving the public. I don't have anything particularly in mind to sponsor, but I certainly have the experience to help give me needed insight in state government."

During initial implementation of the One Percent property tax law, Trounson refused to totally revalue property according to market values, as required by the law. He claimed it would increase residential taxes in Gooding County too fast. The State Tax Commission brought charges against him, but the fight brought Trounson plenty of grassroots support. The charges were dropped after Trounson retired, and his successor complied.

"My purpose is not to just delve into nothing but taxation, although that is my specialty. I'm going in with an open mind and a recognition that the best legislation demands a slow process."

A retired Army colonel, Trounson says his age, 66, won't hamper him, since he still skis and is in good health. He supports "right-to-work" and "sensible planning and zoning."

"I do believe in protecting a person's property from infringement by others, but I do not like rigid rules and regulations."

Rick Brailsford

While he supports planning and zoning, Brailsford also does not want to see the state telling counties and cities how to do the job.

"In places like Owhyee County, where the people don't want zoning, they should not be forced to do so. That's because the next step after telling counties they will have zoning is the state telling us exactly how to do it."

However, Brailsford says he opposes the concept of a bill sponsored this year by Sen. James Auld, R-Boise, which would have allowed 15 percent of the eligible voters in a local government's jurisdiction to force a special election every 90 days on whether or not to have planning and zoning.

"That gets us away from representative government. And that is not in anyone's best interest, because when the deciding group gets too large, sound decisions and good compromising become almost impossible."

As chairman of the Gooding County Board of Commissioners, Brailsford acknowledges that much of his interest is in helping local governments handle funding crises.

"We (counties and cities) keep getting forced to do things, but our limitations on funding remain the same."

As examples, he cites 1982 legislation that requires counties to reassess property on a five-year cycle, without providing additional money to assessors' offices.

"We have two alternatives; not to force local governments to do any more, or else give them the money to fund these additional services and procedures.

"I personally prefer the latter option, because I firmly believe local governments can do the job better than the state. This is primarily because local bodies meet regularly, every month, and are more responsive to people's needs, than say, the Legislature, which meets only three months every year.

"Sure, problems that are going to be addressed in every county can be handled and coordinated by the state agencies we have," Brailsford says. "But if they don't apply to all counties, like planning and zoning, then we should make the programs optional."

The discovery that they had also been quietly building a helicopter may have topped it.

"I hate for this place to be the laughting stock, but there are a lot of bones buried here," Sumner said in announcing the discovery that convicts have been for several years building a mini-helicopter that might have lifted an inmate or two to freedom.

Sumner said some past administrations knew about the "project," but did not place much significance on it. But "just having a helicopter in the prison is ridiculous," Sumner said.

He suggested the copter probably could have been shot down by guards in a tower if anyone tried to escape.

Last year, on his arrival from California's San Quentin Prison, where he had also served as warden, Sumner discovered some of the Nevada state prison's administrative offices had been bugged by inmates.

Morning fire burns Spokane restaurant

SPOKANE (UPI) — A spectacular three-alarm fire Tuesday destroyed a large restaurant building, sending flames and thick black smoke high into the morning sky and disrupting traffic on the city's busiest arterial.

It took firefighters about an hour and a half to control the fire, but not before it had gutted the building, leaving only the exterior brick walls standing. Some restaurant employees had already reported for work, but everyone escaped unharmed.

"Once the roof collapsed, it was difficult to control," said Fire Chief Paul Olsen. "We had some men on the roof trying to ventilate, but we quickly pulled them off."

Olsen said the fire started in the kitchen area when some grease filters above a stove ignited. The flames quickly spread up an exhaust flue and into the building's attic.

A cook told investigators the filters ignited when she turned on a gas stove and it flared up. When automatic extinguishers in the flue failed to come on, the cook used a portable extinguisher to douse the burning filters, but flames had already spread up the flue.

Firefighters responding to the 8:38 a.m. MDT first alarm were immediately concerned that prevailing winds might carry burning embers toward a service station and some homes across the street.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The environmental organization Greenpeace Tuesday presented Norwegian Consul General Olias Solli with a petition bearing the signatures of 25,000 Americans who oppose Norway's commercial slaughter of Harp and Hooded seal pups in the North Atlantic.

Greenpeace directors Ed Chavies and Jolyon Western presented the petition, which asks Norway to abandon its yearly seal hunt and support a resolution before the European Commission banning imports of seal products into the European Economic Community.

Norway and Canada, by far the world's largest sealing nations, will have slaughtered 321,000 seals by May 5, the closing day of the 1982 seal hunt, Greenpeace said.

Alaska shootings claim 7 victims

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Seven people were shot to death in two unrelated incidents only an hour apart, police reported Tuesday.

A police department spokesman said two young women and two young men were killed Monday night at Russian Jack Springs, a golf course and recreation area. An hour earlier, a man with a pistol walked into the Black Bull bar and shot a woman and a man, then shot himself.

Free Sirhan, lawyer advises

SOLEDAD, Calif. (UPI) — The lawyer who defended Sirhan Sirhan at his 1969 trial said Tuesday the assassin of Sen. Robert Kennedy has matured and should be released from prison if he is mentally stable.

Testifying at Sirhan's parole revocation hearing, defense attorney Grant Cooper said a death threat letter he received from Sirhan in 1971 was the product of a mental illness that afflicted the assassin.

"As I look on Sirhan today, he has matured," Cooper told the Board of Prison Terms. "Eighteen- and 19-year-old kids do a lot of crazy things. They stop when they mature. The letter was immature and it was a symptom of mental illness."

Cooper also said Sirhan, 38, rejected a chance to implicate anyone else in the 1968 assassination even though he might have spared himself a death sentence by doing so.

The prominent criminal lawyer from Los Angeles said that when he first interviewed Sirhan, the killer "had no doubt that he had done it, but he had no recollection of firing the shot."

Cooper said he told Sirhan the only way he could escape death in San Quentin's gas chamber was to implicate any conspirators. He said Sirhan insisted he acted alone.

Cooper said Sirhan was questioned under hypnosis twice and "Sirhan stuck to the story under hypnosis two times that he did it alone. It's result was the same."

Sirhan was sentenced to death, but he his life was spared when the California Supreme Court ruled the state's capital punishment law unconstitutional. Sirhan eventually was granted a parole date of Sept. 1, 1984.

Earlier, a reluctant convict named Gerald Wilson restified that Sirhan once told he was paid to assassinate Kennedy.

The three-member board closed the hearing during Wilson's testimony after Wilson said he had been threatened against testifying.

The hearing, called in the wake of public and political pressure, is to determine if the parole date should be revoked.

Photographer may be charged

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Prosecutors say they will not charge actor Burt Reynolds for beating up a photographer who was trespassing at the actor's house but they may charge the trespasser.

City Attorney Ira Reiner said a person "has a right to use a reasonable amount of force to remove a trespasser," and Reynolds would not be charged.

THE DALLES, Ore. (UPI) — The disciples of Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh have revealed plans for a controversial expansion of their central Oregon farming community, employing 2,100 workers in a wide variety of enterprises.

The followers of Rajneesh presented the Wasco County Planning Commission Monday night with detailed plans for a library, gas station, print shop, school, retail center and other facilities on the 64,000-acre Big Muddy Ranch, purchased last year for $6 million.

Commission members took under advisement the commune's request for a zoning change to permit the development, allowing time for study of the proposal by all interested parties, including a statewide land-use watchdog group.

Red-garbed members of the Rajneesh Neo-Sannyas International Commune and other experts overwhelmed the commission with technical data supporting their request for designation of a rural service center on 485 acres of the ranch.

However, the commission's staff concluded that a change in the county's comprehensive plan to allow the rural service center would be premature and suggested a delay until after a May 18 election at which Rajneesh followers plan to incorporate their own town, Rajneeshpuram.

Frustrated by legal roadblocks to their new city, Rajneesh members have bought several tracts of property in the nearby town of Antelope, antagonizing long-time residents of the city.

The newcomers overwhelmed old-timers at the polls in a disincorporation vote last month, blocking an attempt to thwart any plans by the Rajneesh disciples to take over the city.

Late April car sales lag

DETROIT (UPI) — U.S. automakers reported Tuesday they sold [illegible],204 cars in the final 10 days April, down 6.4 percent from the 220,257 sold during the April 21-30 period last year, with Chrysler reporting the largest percentage drop.

General Motors Corp. was the only automaker to show an increase in the final selling period with sales of 129,794 cars, up 1.7 percent from the 127,659 sold in the same period of 1981.

Industry sales for the month dropped 6.6 percent, from 533,724 in April 1981 to 498,630 this April. The industry daily sales rate of 19,178 in April was just below the 1975 recessionary level of 19,909.

Index futures win approval

© Chicago Sun-Times

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission, as expected, approved Tuesday the application by the New York Futures Exchange to trade stock index futures.

The NYFE plans to launch trading Thursday on futures based on the composite index of the New York Stock Exchange, which is the parent of the NYFE.

NYFE backers expect this new contract will infuse life into the exchange, which opened almost two years ago and has seen trading in its Treasury bond and foreign currency futures dry up.

Good quarter at Grumman

BETHPAGE, N.Y. (UPI) — Grumman Corp. Tuesday reported final net income for the first quarter ended March 31 of $7.57 million or 55 cents a share compared with $5.36 million or 39 cents a share a year earlier.

The aerospace concern's revenues for the latest quarter amounted to $519.72 million versus $419.05 million for the 1981 quarter. Net from continuing operations totaled $6.52 million or 47 cents a share compared with $6.21 million or 45 cents a share for the year-ago quarter.

Stocks start fast, manage broad gains

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — Stocks, which got off to a booming start despite higher interest rates, settled for a broad gain Tuesday.

The session was marked by hope and concern about progress on cutting the federal budget deficit.

Trading was heavy.

Electronics and computer issues were strong, along with defense, photography and certain transportation stocks. But energy issues were mixed in the wake of gloomy near-term earnings prospects.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had soared about 8 points by early afternoon, held on to gain 5.42 points to 854.45, its third consecutive advance.

The DJIA, which rallied from a seven-point deficit to gain 0.67 Monday, pushed forward from the outset as Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., raised some spirits by saying he was willing to accept a delay in President Reagan's third-year tax cut, freeze most non-defense spending and opt for certain tax increases to shave the budget deficit.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.37 to 67.63 and the price of an average share increased 15 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gained 0.65 to 117.46. Advances topped declines 908-510 among the 1,880 traded.

Also putting a damper on the early rally was the fact that federal funds rates banks charge one another for overnight loans shot up more than a point during the day.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 68,840,690 compared with 53,355,770 traded Monday.

The American Stock Exchange index added 1.32 to 271.82 and the price of a share jumped 5 cents. Advances topped declines 319-237 among the 779 issues traded. Composite volume came to 5,015,000 shares compared with 3,611,700 traded Monday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers' NASDAQ index of OTC stocks jumped 0.98 to 185.95.

On the trading floor, Pan American World Airways, which sued Braniff over a South American route agreement, was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up ⅜ to 4⅛ with a block of 450,000 shares at 3⅞.

Datapoint, which plunged 8½ points the previous two sessions after revealing it would have a quarterly loss, was second on the list, rebounding 1½ to 14¾ after an opening block of 310,000 shares at 13⅞.

Ralston-Purina was third, up ⅜ to 13½ after blocks of 200,000 shares crossed at 13⅜ and 100,000 traded at 13¾. Middle South Utilities was fourth, unchanged at 13½ following a block of 730,700 shares at 13⅜.

Chicago grain

CHICAGO (UPI) — Tuesday's to-arrive truck and rail bids for grain delivered to Chicago:
Wheat No. 2 hard winter 3.65 ¼ up 2½.
Wheat No. 2 soft red 3.65 ¼ up 2½.
Corn No. 2 yellow 2.75 ¼ off ¼.
Soybeans No. 1 yellow 6.58¼ up 5½.
Oats No. 2 heavy 2.17½ unch.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat was higher, corn lower, oats fractionally higher and soybeans mixed at the close Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Wheat was up 3¼ to 1¼ cents; corn off 2½ to 1¼; oats unchanged to up ½; and soybeans up 4 to off 3 cents.

Soybeans found good support at session lows and settled about mid-range.

An Agriculture Department survey which showed substantial progress in corn and soybean planting weighed on demand throughout the day.

Veteran hurler can reach milestone Thursday against Yanks

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI sports editor

Gaylord Perry, that old fox, is lying back in the weeds.

He's trying to decoy everybody by playing it cool, hoping to create the impression his next start Thursday night in the Seattle Kingdome against the New York Yankees won't be much different than any of his previous 633 others.

On the inside, the Mariners' 43-year-old right-hander and the majors' oldest active player already has begun fighting the butterflies, and that isn't so hard to understand considering his next victory will be the 300th one of his career and virtually insure his eventual election into the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown.

Should Perry beat the Yankees for a second time in a week, he'll become only the 15th pitcher in big league history to win 300 games, and while that accomplishment in itself doesn't carry an automatic guarantee of enshrinement, it does to all intents and purposes. All 14 other 300-game winners, including Early Wynn, the last pitcher to win that number in 1963, are in the Hall of Fame.

That's good enough for Perry. Now wonder he has been so jumpy the past few days, acting like some eager young teenager getting ready for his high school prom.

"I'm looking forward to it," he admits. "What do 300 victories mean to me? It would mean I've had a successful career."

Perry recorded his first victory with the San Francisco Giants on April 25, 1962, and to give you some idea how far back that was, Don "Perfect Game" Larsen finished the game for the Giants that day; Curt Flood, playing for the Cardinals, was leading the National League in hitting, and top quality all-weather outercoats were selling for as little as $29.95 in the finest mens' stores around the country.

That's how long Perry has been pitching in the majors. In his time, he has been accused of throwing spitters and doctoring the ball with outside agents like vaseline and slippery elm. He has even admitted to having resorted to some of those illegalities in a book he collaborated on with Bob Sudyk, columnist for the Hartford Courant.

But nobody could ever accuse Perry of not working hard. He has missed only two starts in the past 16 years due to his own incapacity and the only complaint you ever heard about him during all the time he pitched for the Giants, Indians, Rangers, Padres, Yankees and Braves before this was that he'd occasionally "intimidate" some of his teammates with his criticism of the way they played behind him. In that sense, Perry was something of a hardnose, frequently pushing or prodding his teammates to get on the stick.

He doesn't do that too much anymore with the Mariners although he'll never be able to abide anything less than maximum effort. He give it and expects everyone else to do so also.

"I see certain talent not getting everything they should out of their ability and the way I feel about it is they're hurting themselves and they're hurting me," he says. "Basically, I don't see anything wrong in bringing something like that to the attention of your teammates. In the old days, it was the responsibility of your teammates to tell you that because you may not have realized you weren't doing your job.

"Tom Haller was a good example of what I'm talking about when he caught me with the Giants. He'd come out and chew me out whenever he thought it was necessary. He'd say, 'if you don't get the ball down, you're not gonna be here long,' or 'you'd better get your butt over and cover first base.' He did that because he wanted to win and he wanted you to win. That was the same reason I did it to others later on."

Some of those others Perry got on included Hal Lanier and Tito Fuentes with the Giants and Buddy Bell and Jack Brohamer with the Indians.

"I'd be especially upset when a fellow like Buddy Bell didn't do well," he says. "I played with his dad and I know how hard he played. For awhile there, Buddy couldn't realize what he was doing, but maybe some of the things I said

Getting crossed up

Jerome High's Gina McKelvey follows through on a volley during her match with Wood River High's Penny Wilkins in Tuesday's dual meet at Jerome. McKelvey won in straight sets but the Tigers weren't quite so lucky, dropping a 7-5 decision to the visitors from Hailey. For details see Page D3.

Errors cost Bruins

POCATELLO — Once again succumbing to defensive lapses, the Twin Falls Bruins lost their chance at the Gem State Conference championship Tuesday afternoon, falling to Pocatello, 10-9.

The Bruins, 19-6 overall, came through with one of their stronger offensive performances, lashing 12 hits. However, Twin Falls' hasty defense provided Pocatello with its winning run.

With the score tied 9-9, Indian catcher Mike Randall singled with one out in the bottom of the sixth. After Randall stole second, Twin Falls catcher Curt Thieman tried to pick Randall off base. Thieman's throw sailed into center field, where Todd Wigington zeroed in on the ball up, intending to cut down Randall at third.

"Overall, we played pretty well defensively," Twin Falls Coach Bill Ingram said. "However, we made a few mistakes, and we can't make those in (next week's) district tournament."

Had the Bruins defeated Pocatello, they would have had a chance to gain a tie with the Indians for the Gem State crown by defeating Highland Friday.

The conference title, though, is mostly an inconsequential honor. "Winning it has nothing to do with our chances of going to state," Ingram said.

Twin Falls built a 6-0 lead in the third inning. After base hits by Brock Miller, Lance Sellers and Wigington loaded the bases, Shawn Humberger got hit by a pitch to drive in a run. After Mike Federico's single drove in another run, Thieman socked a double to clear the bases and send home three more runs. Jose Salinas' ground out scored Thieman with the inning's final tally.

Pocatello fought back, taking a 9-7 lead with a seven-run fifth. Craig Toone's bases-loaded triple and Kelly Humphrey's three-run homer were the big blows for the Indians in that frame.

Twin Falls hosts Highland Friday at 2:30 p.m. at Frontier Field.

Jury expected to get case Thursday

Oakland, LA attorneys' call NFL's defense 'a sham'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Attorneys for the Oakland Raiders and the Los Angeles Coliseum insisted Tuesday that the NFL is a monopoly and its legal defense "a sham" in closing arguments of the retrial of an antitrust suit against the league.

"I've never seen such a sham presented seriously in a courtroom," Coliseum attorney Maxwell Blecher said of the NFL's defense.

"Their handling of the case is the biggest pile of you-know-what, and it's all an effort to hide the real issue of antitrust."

NFL attorneys were scheduled to give their closing arguments today, with the plaintiffs getting one more hour for rebuttal before the case goes to the six-woman jury Thursday.

The first trial lasted three months and ended in a mistrial last August with the jury deadlocked 10-2 against the NFL.

The suit, which was filed by the Coliseum and later joined by the Raiders, contends that NFL Rule 4.3 — requiring approval from three-fourths of the franchise owners for the relocation of a team — violates a section of the Sherman Antitrust Act governing unreasonable restraint of trade.

Blecher began his attack on the NFL Tuesday following lengthy instructions to the jury by U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson.

"In their opening statements the NFL told you this wasn't even an antitrust case," Blecher told the jury. "They told you anyone could file an antitrust suit but that didn't mean there was an antitrust issue. But this case is nothing but an antitrust issue.

"The NFL's strategy was to divert your attention from the real issue because there was no way in the world they could defend against the antitrust issue.

"You have to keep your eye on the bull's-eye in this case. The bull's-eye is, 'Why can't the Raiders play football in Los Angeles?' There's nothing else for you to consider.

"And there should be no doubt in your minds that Rule 4.3 as it relates to the NFL's block of the Raiders' proposed move is an unreasonable restraint of trade."

"When the Rams left our Coliseum, we didn't cry about it," Blecher said. "We fought an economic battle with Anaheim and we lost it fair and square. That's the free-enterprise system we have in this country.

"Then we tried to get another team, the Raiders, and we fought with Oakland and we won that battle fair and square. The Raiders agreed to move to Los Angeles.

"And the pathetic part of this case is that after we won that fight fair and square, we still didn't win. And we won't win unless you people bail us out."

Raiders' attorney Joseph Alioto continued the assault on the NFL, saying that Rule 4.3 was a creation of the team owners and an obvious antitrust violation.

Celtics, 76ers, Spurs one victory from conference finals

By United Press International

The Boston Celtics, Philadelphia Sixers and San Antonio Spurs seek series-clinching victories tonight and the completion of the semifinal pairings in the National Basketball Association's playoffs.

The Los Angeles Lakers qualified as one of the two Western semifinalists Sunday when they won their quarterfinal series with with a fourth consecutive win over the Phoenix Suns.

The Celtics, gunning to become the first team to win two straight NBA playoffs since the 1968-69 club, can oust the Washington Bullets with a victory in Boston. Should the Bullets prolong the series, Game 6 would be played Friday in Washington.

The Sixers, who haven't won an NBA championship since 1967, also will have the home court advantage when they oppose the Milwaukee Bucks with a sixth game tentatively scheduled in Milwaukee Friday.

The Spurs, seeking the first NBA championship in their short history, take a 3-1 advantage into Game 5 in Seattle. Game 6 also is slated for Friday.

Both Boston's Bill Fitch and Philadelphia's Billy Cunningham gave assurances their teams won't suffer from over-confidence.

"I dont' feel confident yet," said Fitch. "Check me after we win a fourth game."

"You can be sure no one here plans to rest on his laurels," Cunningham said. "You need four wins to advance to the next round. To feel you can do it is one thing, but to do it is another. We're going to have to come out Wednesday night and work.

"Our attitude is, we don't want to come back to Milwaukee. Comfortable? I'll feel comfortable when we've won four."

Tampa Bay exec shows route the NFL should take

NEWS ITEM: A Tampa Bay Buccaneers exec, shaken by the mere presence of an ESPN camera crew peering over his shoulder, hands the wrong selection to NFL officials during the first round of the NFL draft.

The Bucs draft Penn State guard Shawn Ferrell instead of Booker Reese, a defensive end from Bethune-Cookman as the coaches and/or personnel director dictated over the phone just seconds before.

RESULT: A chink in the you-ll-get fined-$100-if-you-don't-keep-your-socks-up image of the National Football League.

Let's give 15 cheers for that nameless man from Tampa Bay. Better yet, let's boot city slicker Pete Rozelle out of commissioner's office and promote the butter-fingered Buc to the top.

It's time to face facts. The NFL has become too perfect. The past decade has seen the NFL (along with other sports) become akin to IBM and AT & T. The league's Sunday transactions should be published in The Wall Street Journal, not your daily sports section.

Football — NFL style — is not a sport. It's a business where dealings, defections and defense motions off the field affect the game more than Xs and Os or nickle defenses acted out inside the thick white lines.

Even if only for a season, it would be worth shelling out Jim McMahon's signing bonus to see the NFL abandon its medicine-like modus operandi and return to days long past. Fry the computers and scrap the stone-faced Tom Landry. Bring back plays drawn in the dirt and giving the ball to Gale Sayers and letting him go.

A good place to start would be the 1982 draft. There ought to be two ground rules:

• Teams get 30 seconds per choice instead of 15 minutes. This would cut down on speculation between picks, trades, a half dozen phone calls, computer psychoanalysis and most importantly — quality of selections. We'd get back to coaches depending on their instinct.

• Only the head coach and one secretary would be allowed at the tables in New York. This would cut out the 15 middle men from each team who simply jumble the picture and allow for legible handwriting.

With such moves, we would see such draft selections such as:

• The Dallas Cowboys, selecting 26th in the first round, name Lola Falana. Pressed for a reason, Landry responds: "Well, we're going our usual free agent route for players, so we figured we'd give the Cowgirls some Las Vegas-type moves."

• The Minnesota Vikings, chosing 14th, select 4-foot-8, 129-pound wide receiver Harry 'Fleet Feet" Taylor from Pleasant Valley University. "Fleet Feet isn't really all that fast at 12.1 in the 40," Bud Grant replied to reporter's questions, "but he's the only wide receiver in the nation who signed an oath not to do drugs during his NFL career. We're tired of sending our boys to treatment centers."

• The Oakland Raiders, picking 19th, tab defensive back Mike "Nice Guy" Sweeny from South Orange, Calif., Junior High. "Since he's not fully grown yet, he can't maim or cripple any would-be receivers with his helmet," owner Al Davis says. "We're cleaning up our act."

• The San Francisco 49ers, picking 28th by virtue of their second straight world championship, surrender all 12 selections and its year-old World Championship rings in order to have first rights at the sprint and hurdle members of the 1984 United States Olympic team.

• The Raiders draft 11 impressive high school drop-outs from the Watts area of Los Angeles. Having lost in court a few months earlier, Davis presses for and is granted a change in the league's by-laws, allowing a franchise to switch cities if one-half of its starting lineup is from the same neighborhood.

• Los Angeles, picking 21st, signs 6-3, 210-pound tight end John "Tight Jeans" Jackson. The Sporting News scouting report rates Jackson the 977th best tight end in the nation, but Rams' owner Georgia Frontiere explains: "We drafted him for his looks. It's about time I snared a new husband."

With any luck the league drafts itself out of existence when Rozelle dies of a heart attack as TV moguls six his contract demand of a sum equal to the national debt per game per team.

TWIN FALLS — An organizational meeting for a coed softball league will be held tonight at 7:30 at Twin Falls City Hall.

All association dues and sponsor fees will be due at the meeting, according to Bill Durbin, league president.

Any person interested in playing, managing or sponsoring a team should attend the meeting, Durbin said. For more information, Durbin can be contacted at 733-7370.

Canyon Springs men gather tonight

TWIN FALLS — The Canyon Springs Men's Golf Association will meet at 8 p.m. today.

A revert-to-par nine-hole tourney will start between 3 and 6 p.m.

Autopsy doesn't show why player died

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — An autopsy Tuesday on the body of former Sooner defensive back Mike Babb failed to show why his heart suddenly stopped minutes after routine knee surgery, the Oklahoma medical examiner said.

Babb, 23, died Monday at Baptist Medical Center in Oklahoma City as attendants were applying a cast to his leg, which suffered cartilage damage in the University of Oklahoma's varsity-alumni game April 24.

"The ... examination reveals no definitive cause of death, a not unusual situation in cases of this type of sudden and unexpected death," state medical examiner Dr. A. Jay Chapman said in a statement. "Further tests and studies will be done. It is not known when the autopsy results will be final."

Islanders gain Stanley Cup finals again

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Clark Gillies scored a power play goal late in the third period Tuesday night to hold off a determined Quebec rally and lead the defending champion New York Islanders into the Stanley Cup final with a 4-2 victory over the Nordiques.

The victory gave the Islanders an easy four-game sweep of their best-of-seven Prince of Wales Conference series with the Nordiques and kept them in line for a shot at their third consecutive Stanley Cup championship.

A victory in the finals would make New York the first American-based team to win three NHL championships in succession.

The Islanders will meet the winner of the Campbell Conference series between the Vancouver Canucks and the Chicago Black Hawks. The two teams played in Vancouver Tuesday night, but the results were unavailable at press time.

Red Sox keep Fenway Park rocking

By United Press International

American

If the Boston Red Sox get any hotter, they'll have to move back the stands at Fenway Park to protect the fans.

Glenn Hoffman's two-run single capped a four-run fourth inning and led the sizzling Red Sox and Bruce Hurst to a 5-3 victory Tuesday night over the Minnesota Twins.

The victory was the fifth straight for the Red Sox and their 13th in their last 14 games. Sixteen of their 24 games have been decided by two runs or less.

Hurst, making just his third start, worked seven innings and gave up three runs — all unearned — in his longest effort of his major league career. He struck out three, walked one and allowed seven hits.

The Red Sox trailed 3-1 when they came to bat in the third against loser Pete Redfern, 2-3. Dwight Evans led off with an infield single off second baseman Ron Washington and went to second on a fielder's choice by Jim Rice when Washington failed to touch the bag at second.

Indians 6, Angels 5

At Cleveland, Bill Nahorodny doubled home two runs and Lary Sorensen went 7 2-3 innings in picking up his second victory, enabling the Indians to snap a four-game losing streak.

Mariners 4, Orioles 3

At Baltimore, Jim Essian's two-out single to center in the ninth inning scored Todd Cruz with the tying run and Joe Simpson came home on Al Bumbry's error to boost Seattle.

Tigers 4, Rangers 3

At Detroit, Kirk Gibson's hard-nosed slide into second base caused second baseman Doug Flynn to throw wildly past first on a potential double-play ball in the eighth inning that allowed Chet Lemon to score from second and lift the Tigers and extend Texas' losing streak to 10 games.

White Sox 4, Blue Jays 3

At Chicago, Greg Luzinski's three-run homer climaxed a four-run sixth inning that carried the White Sox. Chicago reliever Salome Barojas pitched the final three innings and picked up his seventh save of the season.

Brewers 9, Royals 5

At Milwaukee, Charlie Moore's two-run homer in the sixth inning sparked the Brewers. Moore's homer, his first of the year, scored Larry Hisle, who had walked to wipe out a 6-5 deficit. Jim Slaton, 1-0, who came on in relief of starter Bob McClure in the fifth, blanked Kansas City the rest of the way.

A's 9, Yankees 7 (13)

At New York, Tony Armas doubled in two runs in the 13th inning to lift Oakland to its sixth straight triumph. Bob Owchinko, 1-0, pitched 4 2-3 innings to gain the victory with Dave Beard hurled the last inning to post his first save. Dave LaRoche, 0-1, absorbed the loss.

Seaver gains 1st win of year, 260th of career

By United Press International

National

Tom Seaver isn't nearly as close to the 300-victory plateau as Gaylord Perry, but he's getting there.

The Cincinnati right-hander, who won his first game of the year Tuesday night, needs just 40 more to reach that milestone. Perry goes for his 300th Thursday night.

Seaver, backed by a two-run single by Cesar Cedeno, won the 260th of his career to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-2 victory over the Houston Astros.

Seaver, 1-3, yielded just four hits, struck out two and walked one in seven innings. Tom Hume pitched the final two innings to pick up his sixth save.

The Reds jumped on Astros' starter Bob Knepper, 1-3, for two runs in the first. Eddie Milner walked and Ron Oester singled with both runners advancing on Dave Concepcion's infield out. Cesar Cedeno's single, his first of three straight hits, scored both runners.

Cincinnati added a run off reliever Mike LaCoss in the sixth on a double by Mike Vail and a single by Dan Driessen that scored pinch runner Paul Householder. The Reds made it 4-1 in the seventh on successive two-out singles by Concepcion, Cedeno and Johnny Bench.

A two-out single by Art Howe and Phil Garner's triple accounted for Houston's first run in the seventh and the Astros added a run in the eighth on pinch hitter Dan Heep's double and Ray Knight's RBI single.

Pirates 8, Braves 4

At Pittsburgh, Mike Easler hit his first career grand slam to lead the Pirates and end their four-game losing streak. Pittsburgh's Omar Moreno went 4-for-5 and scored three runs, while stealing two bases. Joe Cowley, 0-1, was the loser.

Cardinals 7, Cubs 4

At St. Louis, Keith Hernandez and George Hendrick homered to back the combined five-hit pitching of Joaquin Andujar and Bruce Sutter and pace the Cardinals. Hernandez blasted a two-run homer in the third, his first of the year, and Hendrick hit his fifth homer of the year, a solo shot, in the fifth to lead the Cardinals to their fifth victory of the year over Chicago in as many games. Andujar, 3-2, had a perfect game through four innings.

Padres 7, Expos 3

At San Diego, Garry Templeton and Sixto Lezcano homered in the first inning to spark the San Diego Padres past the Montreal Expos.

Templeton's home run, his first of the season, came with one out off loser Ray Burris, 0-5, following a single by Juan Bonilla. Lezcano's homer, his third, came one out later.

In late games, it was New York at Los Angeles and Philadelphia at San Francisco.

Depot Grill, Falls Brand post A wins

TWIN FALLS — Depot Grill-Wickes and Falls Brand collected A League victories in Twin Falls men's slowpitch play Tuesday night.

Kevin Nelson drilled two homeruns in pacing Depot Grill-Wickes past Twin Falls Bank & Trust 15-6 while Falls Brand hammered out a 13-7 decision over Royal Lounge. Gateway Trailer, getting a homer from Gary Huft, dropped Wholesale Carpet 14-11 despite the three-for-four hitting of Jerry Sivulich and Randy Shank.

In men's B League play, Northwest Plywood outlasted Bean Growers 14-11. Cook's Pest Control-Twin Valley Seed toppled Diamond International 6-2 and in the marathon of the league, Blue Lakes Realty nipped Maxie's Pizza-Corner Pocket 8-7 in 10 innings. Eddie Lang delivered the winning run with a base hit.

Wendy Coonts hit a three-run homer to highlight Coors of Magic Valley's 21-0 decision over Payless Drug in the women's A League.

Women's B League games saw Norm's Cafe topple Haney Seed 14-8 while Dick's Pharmacy saw the winning run forced in by a walk in nipping Mary Carter Center 14-13.

3 records fall, 1 tied at Declo despite cold

DECLO — Three records fell and another was tied despite windy and cold conditions that plagued the Declo Invitational Track Meet Tuesday.

The Valley boys and Kimberly girls took the team titles, stamping themselves as top contenders for the Canyon Conference Championships slated Friday at Wendell.

All but one of the record efforts came in the field events, probably highlighted by a 114-5½ discus effort by Kimberly's Shelby Doney. Doney had a good series with several throws over 110 feet as she added 10 feet to her previous individual best.

The wind didn't help any performances on the clock but, Teresa Wright of Kimberly flew to a pair of sprint victories and Valley's Rochelle Clark took both hurdle races. Kimberly had another double champion in Dori Whittaker who won the long distance events.

In the boys division, Valley's Jaime Garcia won the 1,600 and 3,200 and Art Henry won the 400 and 800.

Wood River sweeps quadrangular

HAILEY — Wood River's track and field teams picked up two easy victories Tuesday afternoon in a four-way meet.

The Wolverine boys won every running event but one in outdistancing Mackay, Filer and Hansen. Though Wood River's performers were hot, the climate didn't match.

"We were treating this as a warm-up for the district meet, but it (the weather) wasn't warm at all," Wood River boys Coach Bob Shay quipped.

Lisa Bernhagen won four events — the 100-, 200- and 400-meter dashes plus her specialty, the high jump — to lead the Wolverine girls. Lori Pascoe chipped in with victories in the 800 and 3200 meters.

Filer's Gina Oschner and Wood River's Maureen McGinnis provided the meet's highlight, battling through every step of the 1600 before Oschner won by three-tenths of a second.

"They ran shoulder-to-shoulder for the last 100 yards," Wood River girls' Coach John Hopkins recounted.

Rams take Gem State golf title

POCATELLO — The Highland Rams, putting three men in the high 70s, enjoyed a day on the home course Tuesday by winning the Gem State Conference golf championship.

The Rams, who will hase the home course advantage in the state finals next month, ended the day with 322 strokes, six ahead of Twin Falls.

It marked the second straight loss to the Rams by the Bruins who had won their first six matches of the year.

"We've been able to beat them everywhere but on their home course," Coach Al Rohweder said. "We've played their (Highland golf course) twice and from the looks of things we're getting worse. At this rate we'll end up at about 340 at state time. But those 78, 79, 79 scores are darned good ones on that course in the kind of wind we had today."

The coach said "I'm going to shake up the troops" for the next tournament, which is the 20-team Idaho Falls Classic at Pinecrest Golf Course Friday.

"We had a little lage at this time last year, too, and came back and won state. It was the Gate City and conference both times last year," Rohweder said.

Twin Falls 338 — Dave Rasmussen 78, Jason Meyerhoeffer 82, Steve Meyerhoeffer 83, Larry Waldron 85.

Idaho Falls 342 — John Farias 84, Mark Rickert 85, Alan Wright 86, John Christenson 87.

Blackfoot 383 — Scott Anderson 86, Quinn Wheeler 97, Todd Vandercreek 100, Paul Barnard 100.

Minico rips Blackfoot

RUPERT — Overcoming sloppiness afield, the Minico Spartans bombarded Blackfoot 12-2 Tuesday afternoon in a game shortened by the 10-run "slaughter" rule.

The Spartans dropped two fly balls to the outfield — one allowing Blackfoot's only runs — and an infield pop-up. However, they were more than competent at the plate, scoring four runs in the first inning and five in the second to settle matters.

Nevertheless, Minico Coach Rick Baumann wasn't totally satisfied.

"I didn't think we played that well," he said. "I thought Terence (Smith, starting pitcher) threw the ball well and we did hit the ball well. But it was just a windy, miserable day and a hard game to get up for."

Brock Wimmill capped Minico's scoring in the first, driving a single up the middle with a 3-2 count that scored Dave Garro all the way from first base. Jeff Schow's two-run triple was the Spartans' major second-inning blow.

Minico, 18-5 overall, visits Blackfoot Thursday. Baumann said he expects his Spartans to face Chuck Reay, the Broncos' top pitcher.

Wood River edges Jerome

JEROME — Jaime Marr and Halina Barras' victory in a mixed doubles' match gave Wood River a doubles sweep and a 7-5 triumph over Jerome in high school tennis Tuesday afternoon.

The Tigers won all but one singles match and had a chance for a tie, but the Wolverine pair prevailed in the final set, giving Wood River the victory.

"You caught me in '80 and you should've been guessing what I was gonna throw you," Perry told Cerone.

"I was," Cerone laughed, "but I was guessing wrong."

Released by the Braves last October, Perry had to do some shopping around last winter before the Mariners finally signed him in March. Even if he gets his 300th win and continues pitching the whole season, Perry sees no reason why he can't keep on doing so again next year.

to him helped because you don't find anybody who plays harder than he does now. You go to him now, and you'll see him getting after some of the younger guys on his club like I did with him."

Perry, the only pitcher ever to win the Cy Young Award in both leagues, always pushed himself harder than he did anyone else.

"If I hadn't, I guarantee you I wouldn't have had 299 victories," he says.

That 299th last Friday had some nostalgia for him because his wife, Blanche, came up to New York from their home in Williamston, N.C., especially to see him pitch against the Yankees.

"It reminded me of the times she'd come to New York years ago for voice lessons and she'd skip the lessons so she could watch me pitch," Perry says. "She loves baseball but she couldn't stay more than that one day this time because she had to get back to see our son, Jack, play for his high school team the following day, and one of our daughters, Allison, play in a softball game."

Perry was with the Yankees six weeks in 1980 and after he beat them last Friday, two of his former teammates, Bobby Murcer and Rick Cerone, came by to offer their congratulations. Neither was able to get a bit off him.

401V SuperFiller Radial Golf pro Lee Trevino says, "I'm certainly not the first to tell you that the grip is important when you drive."

The three different areas of the Bridgestone SuperFiller radial tire have three different spring rates. The bead area of SuperFiller is very stiff, the sidewalls flexible for performance and comfort, and the tread area hard with an aggressive tread pattern for long wear.

Big game season hearings next week

JEROME — Two public hearings to discuss the proposed recommendations for this fall's big game seasons will be held next week.

The first hearing is Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Burley Inn. The second hearing is Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Canyon Springs Inn in Twin Falls.

Earlier this year the Idaho Department of Fish and Game was considering a five-day bulls only elk hunt in Unit 43, but it has decided to maintain the unit as a controlled hunt for the upcoming five-year segment.

Unit 45 will also continue as a controlled deer hunt for bucks only with a minor reduction in the number of muzzle loader permits.

One proposed change will include a longer either sex deer season in Unit 43 and the west half of unit 48. However, the either sex hunt will occur during the middle of the season rather than at the beginning as in the past.

The number of either sex permits for controlled hunts in Units 54 and 56 are proposed for a reduction with a corresponding increase in the number of antlered only permits. A general bucks only deer hunt is proposed for Unit 56 followed by a controlled antlerless hunt in the areas near the wintering feeding sites in the southern portion of the unit.

Unit 52 on the east side of U.S. Highway 93 is being proposed for a general bucks only deer hunt. The unit has been on a controlled basis in the past.

The recommendations from the department, including comments received at the public hearings, will be reviewed by the Idaho Fish and Game Commission when it sets the final dates and regulations at its May 17 and 18 meeting.

The commission will meet May 17 starting at 7:30 p.m. at the Department of Fish and Game headquarters building in Boise at 600 South Walnut St.

Persons may comment prior to the meeting by writing to Fred A. Christensen, chairman, Fish and Game Commission, P.O. Box 25, Boise, ID 83707.

Other agenda items include proposed opening dates for the 1982 upland game bird seasons, an amended order to provide for certification of disease-free wildlife to be introduced into the state and a proposal to restrict the use of electronic or recorded calls while hunting big game animals.

Last stand

Caribou may disappear from lower 48 states

BONNERS FERRY, Idaho (UPI) — The graceful caribou once foraged in woods all across the northern United States but may's onslaught has left only the Selkirk Mountain herd of northern Idaho — and its days seem numbered.

The herd, which wanders back and forth across the Canadian border in its hunt for food, is down to less than 20 of the animals that are called reindeer by children around the world.

It's questionable whether they can be saved — and so far no one has come up with the $50,000 a year needed to find the answer.

Thousands of caribou once roamed Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, and northern New England, but the intrusion of civilization and overhunting brought about their extinction.

But 13 to 20 of the animals are tucked away in the Selkirk Mountains, where the Washington and Idaho borders bump Canada. Their numbers are far below a normal caribou population of 100 to 300 head, made up of several herds of 15 to 30 animals.

The only man who has counted the Selkirk herd recently is Jasper Carlton, a transplanted nature lover from Maine who has made saving the herd his mission.

He and his wife, Kitti, raise goats on a small farm and sell the milk to make ends meet. The rest of their time is dedicated to the caribou, which Carlton can't seem to learn enough about.

Except for mileage from the Forest Service, he works for free and does so gladly.

He has spent the better part of four years in the shadow of the Selkirk Mountains, hugging open fires for warmth and snowshoeing hundreds of miles for a chance to pick up a few footprints or droppings.

He believes this last race of caribou can be saved but doesn't think the bureaucracies involved will act soon enough.

"I fear the foot-dragging will go on to the last critter," he said.

The major trouble with this antlered member of the deer family is that it insists on maintaining its old ways.

The caribou feeds in summer on succulent high-country grasses, forbs and shrubs above 4,500 feet and in winter on a mossy matter known as lichens, which hang only from spruce and sub-alpine fir trees 150-250 years old.

The timber industry likes the old growth timber too, but not for the lichens. Trees that old are fast becoming as rare as caribou on both sides of the border as modern timber practices see entire forests regenerated every 50-80 years.

Final herd of 13 to 20 caribou migrate into, out of Idaho

The chocolate-brown caribou, which are larger than deer and smaller than elk, also have self-destructive habits.

They refuse to hide or even run from hunters. They are fond of licking salt along Highway 3 in southern British Columbia where cars and trucks pass in a hurry.

And they keep to their instinctual trails, which over the years have been adopted by man for highways, access roads, gas lines, power lines, logging operations, snowmobile and four-wheel drive trails.

Nature, including wildfires and periodic infestations of the pine bark beetle, may also take their toll on caribou habitat.

A good dozen agencies and organizations on both sides of the border are trying to preserve the species, but none has been able to generate enough money to conduct the necessary studies.

The Canadians have much more time than their American counterparts. While decreasing in numbers in direct proportion to old-growth timber cuts, caribou are not in danger of extinction up north.

A group known as the International Mountain Caribou Technical Committee, made up of wildlife biologists, U.S. and Canadian officials and authorities from the private sector, has been studying the Selkirk herd for 11 years.

The caribou's plight is agreed on by committe members, the U.S. Forest Service, Idaho Fish and Game Department, Washington State Fish and Game Department, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Audobon Society, Canadian Ministry of the Environment and the timber industry.

They all know the herd's population is decreasing because cows are not producing calves as they should, but they don't know how to reverse the trend.

There are more excuses for not determining this vital information than there are caribou. But they usually boil down to two: lack of money and lack of priority.

Carlton said Canadian and Idaho authorities and biologists directly involved in overseeing the caribou herd are more committed to solutions than the other bureaucracies, but all are strapped for funds.

In addition, there's concern among government officials that the herd is doomed — that it has become too small to save — and spending money on it would be wasteful.

The U.S. Forest Service, the agency responsible for the Selkirk herd, has put together a long-term land use plan for the Panhandle National Forest where the herd forages when not in Canada.

The plan calls for declaring 160,000 acres of the 2.5-million acre forest critical caribou habitat, meaning the reindeer will get first consideration before any logging or man-caused activity is permitted.

The Forest Service has opposed a recommendation the animal be placed on the endangered species list on grounds the National Forest Management Act gives it enough authority to preserve its habitat.

The service's critics say it is also protecting its bureaucratic turf, since the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service would become involved if the caribou were declared endangered.

Neither officials from the Forest Service nor the Fish and Wildlife Service in Washington, D.C., held out any hope money would be forthcoming for a study no matter what the herd's designation due to tight federal budgets.

Even if the herd were listed, it would take at least a year for the designation to become official and then the caribou would have to compete for funds with the likes of the grizzly bear and the California condor.

The best hope for the herd, if there is any, is national attention on the problem, according to Carlton.

The next-best hope, he said, is a joint effort by the states of Idaho and Washington to skirt all the bureaucracies involved, claim jurisdiction of the herd, and jointly launch the long-delayed study.

However, both states have the same type of budget problems plaguing the federal government.

"Such a moderate sum is needed," Carlton said. "The California Condor has received a commitment of $25 million and it has no habitat. We're looking for $350,000 to study this critter that does have a habitat and many people and agencies, both in the private and public sectors, willing to work on its behalf."

He said the caribou is not the only animal in danger in diminishing old-growth forests stands: It's just at the top of the food chain and certain to go first if something isn't done to protect it.

"It seems a real shame. I know people will care about his critter as soon as they learn about the trouble it's in."

Craters of the Moon drive open

ARCO — The loop drive at Craters of the Moon National Monument is open for the season.

The monument's visitor center will be open seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. until mid-June when the closing time will become 8 p.m. according to Robert Hentges, superintendent of the monument.

Interpretive services such as evening campfire programs and nature walks will not begin until the arrival of the seasonal personnel in mid-June.

Because of the possibility of freezing temperatures at night, the campground restroom facilities will not be open until the middle of May. However, portions of the campground are open to visitors and a primitive-type toilet is available.

BLM waters offer early fishing

SHOSHONE — The Richfield Canal and the Little Wood River are two streams that flow through miles of public land and offer excellent spring fishing.

Administered by the Bureau of Land Management, the streams have good access and open in advance of the normal season opener later this month.

Fishermen may use the service roads which parallel the canal, but should stay off the roads during wet periods to prevent rutting.

The lower Little Wood River flows through public land north of Richfield. Most public land is located between Preacher and Pagari Bridge. The BLM recently acquired additional land along the river which ensures public access to many miles of the stream. The bureau is taking measures to improve the streambanks, such as fencing and reseeding.

The Little Wood River supports a good fishery for rainbow and brown trout. An occasional trout over five pounds is taken. Use has been light this spring because of muddy roads but activity should increase with drier weather.

Vulnerable: North. Dealer: South. The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2♣	Pass
2♦	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Heart four

It takes a certain amount of courage to make an unusual play. If the unusual play loses, there is always the matter of a smudged reputation. However, if it wins, declarer can enjoy not only the 700 rubber, he can also feel good about making a good play.

Charles Weed of Dallas opened the South hand one no trump. This was an unusul pattern for this bid, however, rebidding hands of this strength can become awkward if one opens one diamond.

Against the no trump game, West led his fourth best heart and Weed had to make his crucial decision at trick one. Under normal circumstances, one would play low from dummy to protect the heart honors, but the situation was far from normal. The game hinged on Weed's six card diamond suit and what might happen to the heart honors was of secondary importance.

Needing dummy entries desperately, Weed hopped up with dummy's heart king at trick one and led a diamond, losing his 10 to West's king. Ace and another heart established West's fourth heart, but Weed was now in charge. He won his heart queen and crossed to dummy's spade ace to make another diamond play. The crucial diamond suit came in beautifully and Weed was able to score "an easy" 10 tricks. The original heart play made the big difference.
